Queen's Visit Political Kick at Paris

By EDWIN ROTH
Special to the Colonist

DUESSELDORF—In his black evening suit with tails, stiff white shirt and white tie, Britain's white-haired Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart looked very tired.

He walked slowly behind Queen Elizabeth through almost 3,000 evening-dressed or uniformed men and women glittering with jewels and decorations at the magnificent baroque Brühl castle near West Germany's capital, Bonn. But despite his tiredness, his smile seemed to show satisfaction.

"It's very good that this royal state visit is now taking place," he remarked to me while near us the Queen's superb diamonds sparkled in the candlelight. "I say this not only as British foreign secretary, but also as a member of the Labor party. We want the best possible relations with West Germany. This royal state visit helps a lot to get them."

Quite Different

Beside Stewart stood West Germany's rotund Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, happily spreading aromatic smoke from his big cigar. With a national election due in September, Queen Elizabeth II of England is worth many votes to him.

"Heir Bundeskanzler," I asked him, "how would you compare this state visit of Queen Elizabeth with the state visits of President de Gaulle in 1962, and President Kennedy in 1963?"

"A queen is something quite different from a president," lectured Professor Erhard.

"Queen Elizabeth cannot be as jovial as President de Gaulle and President Kennedy were here in Germany. She cannot walk into crowds and shake hands like de Gaulle and Kennedy."

Erhard paused, and added diplomatically: "But I think the German people's emotional participation in this visit is greater."

Dearly Love Queen

"Why?"

"Because the Germans are good republicans. And because they are good republicans, they dearly love a queen."

During that reception at Brühl castle, Michael Stewart knew (but did not tell) exactly how the Labor government was using the Queen's visit in the present fierce diplomatic and "public relations" battle against General de Gaulle. Erhard probably knew it too, because public speeches by visitors on formal state visits are usually known by the host government before they are made.

It was known, of course, that Elizabeth would publicly support the German dream of Germany's reunification by free elections. She exploded her Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson's carefully prepared bombshell against French-German friendship while standing in a bright pink dress beside the Rhine at Koblenz—a few moments before she and her husband Prince Philip boarded the white steamboat Lorelei for a Rhine cruise.

Alliance Recalled

In her speech thanking the prime minister of Rhineland-Palatinate for his official welcome, the Queen dramatically recalled the British-German alliance against France which defeated Napoleon—and German Field Marshal Blücher's crossing of the Rhine on his way to the Battle of Waterloo, where he and his German soldiers "brought the British troops invaluable support at a turning point of history 150 years ago."

Under the British constitution, Queen Elizabeth can say publicly only what her Prime Minister wants her to say.

This historical note, which was not essential and which nobody would have missed, was not put into her speech carelessly. Prime Minister Harold Wilson certainly knew that in West Germany's present political situation—most of which revolves passionately around Charles de Gaulle—the Queen's remark would make a tremendous impact.

Instant Reaction

It did—in both West Germany and France. General de Gaulle and the entire French nation, who venerate Napoleon as their greatest national hero, are extremely touchy about French defeats. But most West Germans are furious about de Gaulle's recent political attitudes, and some West German newspapers reflected this feeling by printing the Queen's words about the British-German alliance against France under big headlines.

In France, the Queen's speech was violently attacked

Apprentice's Dream Comes True

DUISBURG, Germany (UPI)—The large black automobile bearing the Queen rolled to a halt before a nervous group of executives, policemen and workers at the Mannesman Steel Works Tuesday.

Apprentices with their faces scrubbed and hair slicked down above grimy overalls, beamed at Queen Elizabeth II. She beamed back through the automobile window.

No one moved. It had not been arranged for someone to open the car door. A company policeman started forward, faltered, and fell back.

There was an excruciating moment. Then Juergen Loosen, a 20-year-old apprentice, stepped forward, opened the door and helped the Queen out.

"Your Majesty," he said, "we have made a sundial of steel for you to show what we have learned here."

The apprentices and the girls from the factory offices started creeping closer, and the nearest ranks were soon

Big Prizes to City Pair

Victoria students won two major scholarship awards at the University of Victoria, it was announced Wednesday night. As head of the graduating class in the Faculty of Arts and Science, Richard Arthur Gough was awarded the governor-general's medal. Anne E. Kemp was awarded the Dr.

Maxwell Cameron Medal as head of the graduating class in the Faculty of Education, secondary program. Mr. Gough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Gough, 1161 Rockland, earned an 88.5 per cent average. Miss Kemp earned 81 per cent. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kemp, 2006 Granite. See Page 38 for complete graduate list.

Last Hopes Gone

Arrival of Brazilians Releases U.S. Marines

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters)—withdrawal of men since American troops were landed here a month ago, a U.S. military spokesman said.

This was roughly equal to the number of Latin American troops who have arrived here to form part of an inter-American force.

McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's adviser on national security affairs, left here earlier in the day to report to the White House.

CALLS ON CAAMANO

One of his last acts was to hold a four-hour interview with Col. Francisco Caamano Dene, president of the rebel government.

It was his first personal meeting with Caamano since arriving here more than a week ago. According to informed sources, he had previously met Brig. Gen. Antonio Imbert, head of the "reconstruction" junta.

MORE LEAVING

The withdrawal of 1,100 more U.S. troops is expected to follow Wednesday's withdrawal of 600. The move would be timed to coincide with the arrival of 1,250 Brazilian troops.

In Washington, U.S. Secretary of State Rusk said the Dominican crisis should prompt the Organization of American States to establish machinery which would let it deal quickly with "fast-moving events."

STANDBY FORCE

The 20-nation hemispheric organization, he said, should take up again the question of forming some standby force on a continuing basis that would be on prompt call in the event of a crisis.

It also should organize political machinery that would let it make quick decisions, he said.

Socred Sees Takeover Of B.C. Telephone

VANCOUVER (CP)—Takeover of the B.C. Telephone Company has been forecast by Social Credit M.L.A. Bert Price. He told a meeting here that if the company fails to give the public a fair deal in their rates there would be no choice but for the government to step in.

De Gaulle Rejects Waterloo Ceremony

PARIS (UPI)—President de Gaulle, refusing to let bygones be bygones, has vetoed French participation in planned celebrations of the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo.

As a result, plans have been dropped for an allied military parade June 18 on the Waterloo battlefield where Napoleon suffered his final defeat at the hands of the Duke of Wellington and Prussian Field Marshal Blücher.

French officials said they received no formal invitation to take part in the ceremonies but it was learned preliminary "unofficial soundings" were politely but firmly turned down.

In Asia—Rusk Warns:

'BIG RED PUSH BIG MISTAKE'

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk, claiming a further Soviet missile involvement in the Viet Nam war, said Wednesday it would be a great mistake if Moscow and Peking should think "that a larger war on their side would remove us from Southeast Asia."

At his first press conference in two months, Rusk said there may be a second surface-to-air missile site in the immediate area of Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital.

"We understand that in one of these sites there is present missile-associated equipment," Rusk said under question. "I wouldn't want to go into details."

WONT STAY EMPTY

"But I would suppose that we could all assume that if they build (such) sites, they don't build them to let them remain empty."

U.S. officials said that the term missile-associated equipment refers to such things as launch platforms, gantries, derricks, launching pads and similar apparatus needed to put a missile into firing position. So far as is known at present, there are no Soviet missiles in place and ready for firing, officials said.

20-MILE RANGE

The type of Soviet-supplied missiles involved have a range of about 20 miles. They are not to be confused with the intermediate-range missiles which the Soviet Union installed in Cuba and brought on the confrontation with President John F. Kennedy in October, 1962.

Rusk spoke out in stronger terms than in the past on the seriousness of the Viet Nam situation. "I think it is very important that no one misunderstand the gravity of the situation," he said.

DETERMINED

While Rusk minimized the import of a statement by Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton, a Canadian native who said the Soviet Union and China were moving together into the Viet Nam situation, he declared:

"If those who are supporting North Viet Nam, or feel themselves associated with North Viet Nam, feel that they can drive us out of our commitments there in Southeast Asia—these commitments are serious, they are of long standing, and we are determined."

At another point, Rusk said there continue to be very important differences between Moscow and Peking.

Anzac Aid On Way To Viet Nam

(From Reuters, UPI)

New Zealand will send combat troops to South Viet Nam, Prime Minister Keith Holyoake has announced.

He said an artillery battery will be sent to aid U.S. forces in the Southeast Asia country. A small group of New Zealand army engineers is already in South Viet Nam, as is a small medical unit.

Australia has sent 900 soldiers to the fighting zone. They sailed aboard the aircraft carrier Sydney under wartime blackout conditions.

Vote Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An overpowering coalition of Democratic and Republican U.S. Senators passed President Johnson's voting rights bill Wednesday, 77 to 19. Southern opposition was routed under a closure rule that choked off debate. The vote sending the precedent-setting measure to the House came after five weeks of Senate debate.

Vancouver Times Now Weekly

Lilies Spell the End Of Daily Publication

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP)—There were lilies in the newsroom Wednesday as the Vancouver Times announced it was temporarily leaving the daily field to become a weekly.

The wax flowers were carried in by two reporters, members of the 225-man staff that will be cut to 100 key men by the time the last daily edition rolls next Monday.

By the following Thursday the Times, which first published as a daily Sept. 5, 1964, will be into weekly operation.

President Val Warren, at a press conference, said the newspaper hopes to build its present 50,000 circulation to 150,000 and gradually return to the daily field.

The change to a weekly—circulation price 35 cents a month—was made necessary by the "anguish of the lack of working capital."

Mr. Warren said recently directors had thought that $4,000,000 was enough to start the newspaper. But experience had shown that they had underestimated and that $6,000,000 would have been a more realistic figure.

At the press conference he said it had cost $300,000 to launch the newspaper and during its nine months of publication it had lost "more than $1,000,000."

Mr. Warren said the March operating loss was $30,000. Wednesday's announcement came almost two months after by many newspapers and by the government-controlled state television and radio.

To turn the political and military alliance of Britain and West Germany into real friendship was the aim of the state visit. It returned after a unique eight years' delay—the state visit to Britain of West Germany's president Theodor Heuss in 1958. At that time, the post-war relationship between Britain and West Germany was not yet ripe for such a state visit, and it proved to be a mistake.

After years of German requests, the return visit of the Queen to West Germany was decided last year by Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservative government. Harold Wilson's Labor government agreed to it.

General de Gaulle, for his own long-term political reasons, publicly forgave and accepted West Germany during his state visit in September 1962. He made many speeches in German, shook thousands of hands, and flattered the Germans as no foreign statesman had ever flattered them before. But he refused to visit West Berlin.

In June 1963, John F. Kennedy spent four days in West Germany. On the final day, he flew to Berlin, and personally smashed the Paris-Bonn axis during Europe's most emotional political demonstration since the war by crying in German, "Ich bin ein Berliner."

But while they were accepted by France and the United States, the Germans have never had ungrudging acceptance from Britain.

For Elizabeth's present state visit to Germany, the most important problem was whether it would equal or surpass the visits of de Gaulle and Kennedy. It was organized as the longest, most magnificent, and most expensive state visit anywhere in Europe since 1945.

And never before was any state visit so much exploited by commercial advertising.

With a frankness not usual in British senior diplomats, Britain's Bonn ambassador, Sir Frank Roberts, told the correspondent of a very serious, influential British newspaper that this royal visit's most important factor is "to outdo de Gaulle."

The German government did its best to whip up public enthusiasm. Before Queen Elizabeth's motorcade drove a truck with loudspeakers announcing excitedly that Queen Elizabeth II of England would come this way in a few minutes. From this truck, thousands of British and German paper flags were distributed.

Unlike de Gaulle and Kennedy, the Queen has no "crowd contact." Her uncle, the Duke of Windsor, had it, and her sister, Princess Margaret, has it—but not Queen Elizabeth. As a person, she is fundamentally shy and reserved.

As every German knows, and many Britons would prefer not to know, Queen Elizabeth is on her father's side entirely of German origin—even her grandmother Queen Mary was a German. Her husband Prince Philip "of Greece" is entirely German, with all his sisters married to aristocratic Germans. (The Greek royal family is of German origin.)

Changed Name

Prince Philip changed his family name "Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg" to "Mountbatten" only a few weeks before he married Princess Elizabeth in 1947—but the "Mountbatten" name of his uncle, Earl Louis Mountbatten, is an anglicization of the German name of Earl Mountbatten's entirely German father, Prince Heinrich von Battenberg.

Both Queen Elizabeth and her husband are great-grandchildren of Queen Victoria, descendant of the German Hanoverian kings of England—who married the German Prince Albert von Sachsen-Coburg-Gotha. Of Queen Victoria's nine children, six were married to German princes and princesses.

Because Queen Victoria had 41 grandchildren and 84 great-grandchildren, both Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip have many blood-relations in the Protestant German aristocracy—beside Prince Philip's many German relations by marriage.

Of the many Germans with whom I talked about this royal tour, its meaning for Germany was best expressed to me by the Bavarian state secretary, Dr. Franz Lippert, one of Bavaria's (and therefore Germany's) most important conservative politicians. He had conducted Queen Elizabeth on part of her Munich visit.

As we stood in the crowded entrance hall of Munich's opera house after the Queen had left, he gazed at the departing audience and remarked happily: "This visit can be regarded as the proof that we are accepted again—and the feeling this gives to us all is really very pleasant and comforting."

Wildlife Help Wrong

Wildlife lovers who find young animals in the woods and take them home are breaking the law, warns the B.C. Fish and Game Branch.

Such people are liable to fines totalling $300, says branch director Jim Hatter.

The kindest thing, he advises, is to leave all young animals alone. If the animal's mother is dead, get in touch with the local conservation officer.

Lilies for Dying Daily

the newspaper announced it was fighting for survival. On March 27 it said it needed $100,000 to retire immediate commitments and to ensure that it could achieve a profit position by fall.

"The choice of converting to a weekly was not ours," Mr. Warren said.

It came about because the Times found itself in "an uncomfortable working capital position" after heavy cost of "shaking down our new plant in the first four months of operation."

The newspaper's earnings did not accelerate fast enough from this point, he said.

Had the newspaper continued as a daily, it would have incurred "further substantial losses for our shareholders."

"We do not want to create any further debt matter. Within eight weeks we will be able to operate at a profit for the first time."

The weekly will publish with the same offset-color printing process used in the afternoon daily.

In six to 12 months, the president said, it was hoped to "build up a substantially greater circulation with a view to re-entry into the daily field with a circulation of 150,000."

"The Times would be a 'daily published once a week' and would grow to twice a week until it returned to the daily field in competition with the afternoon Sun and the morning Province.

The move would not affect plans by the Times Publishing Company for four new Canadian dailies within the next five years. Plans for inaugurating a new daily in Edmonton "have been going ahead for three months and so far as I know there has been no change," Mr. Warren said.

With a staff meeting, and staff cuts, only hours away, the Times editorial employees—most of whom heard of the switch to weekly publication overnight—joked and took up a collection for a young girl staffer who had just been married.

Asked one co-worker: "How does it feel to be the unemployed wife of an unemployed bass player?"

Your Good Health

Roundworms Aren't Fatal Despite Severe Symptoms

By JOSEPH MOINER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Moiner: A friend has been told he has roundworms. What are these? Are they fatal? Can they be removed? How can they be detected? No underwear a complete physical a few months ago. Why weren't they discovered then?—JOHN S.

Roundworms are intestinal parasites, just as pinworms are, but larger. While they aren't fatal, they can make a person rather sick and miserable, and weaken him.

These worms can be found almost anywhere geographically but are more prevalent in warm or tropical climates. Food or water becomes contaminated with their eggs, the eggs are swallowed, and hatch out into worms. It takes about 10 weeks for the eggs to hatch and form the worms to produce symptoms, sometimes less.

This individual may have acquired the worms after his physical examination. Alternatively, he may not have had any symptoms, or he may not have made clear what his symptoms were.

A stool examination (to find roundworm eggs) is the positive method of diagnosis. Such a test is not ordinarily made as part of an examination unless the patient's history indicates a possibility. In some instances a blood test will show a characteristic increase in one type of white blood cell—eosinophils—and thus give a clue to the trouble, but this increase can result from other conditions as well.

Cramps, colic-type pain, diarrhea, bowel obstruction, jaundice and even bronchial involvement are all possible symptoms, along with swollen eyes, cough, fever and irritability. The patient, in fact, usually is quite sick when the trouble first develops.

MOIL WATER

Medication can be given to rid the intestine of these parasites, but it doesn't guarantee that more eggs won't be swallowed. To avoid getting them again, the first step naturally is to find out the source. In addition, boil drinking water and cook all fruits and vegetables.

Dear Dr. Moiner: If tests show you have pernicious anemia and you take Vitamin B12 shots for about three months, and then another test shows that the blood is back to normal, do you have to continue with the shots? Once you have pernicious anemia, do you always have it?—MRS. J. P.

Yes, once you have it, you will always have it, but don't be alarmed. Discovery of the use of Vitamin B12 was one of the great strides of medicine.

In the 1920's the disease meant that death was inevitable within quite a short time. Today periodic injections keep the blood up to the correct count for as long as necessary.

Dear Sir: I have chronic bronchitis. One doctor suggested that I take 10 drops of iodine per day. It tastes terrible and therefore I do not take it every day.—M.M.

Better check back with the doctor. Are you certain he didn't say 10 drops of a saturated solution of potassium iodide? That is used to loosen thick mucus. Some patients take it in a glass of milk, juice, etc.

U.K. Homosexuals

Law Reform Beaten

LONDON (UPI)—The Commons refused Wednesday to consider a bill for reform of the law on homosexual offences by a vote of 178 to 159.

The vote ended hopes that the law might be revised during the current session of Parliament, although the House of Lords approved in principle a similar bill by a 2-1 margin Monday.

PRIVATE ACTS

The Commons measure, introduced by Labor MP Leo Abse, would have removed criminal penalties for private acts by consenting males over the age of 21.

Many members abstained from voting. Abse noted in vain the existing law is "a blackmailer's charter" random in application and unenforceable.

"I see my little son—he is eight years old—these days stretching out in search of his grown-up male identity," Abse said.

"I find him strutting around in my shoes and sometimes, heaven help him, putting on my hats. Is it surprising that a boy without a father, lacking a male figure with whom he can identify himself, is sometimes left with the curse of a male body encasing a feminine soul?"

Canadian Flags Welcome Queen

SOEST, West Germany (CP)—Hundreds of expatriate Canadian school children have something to write home about following a visit to Canadian forces and their families here Wednesday by Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

The royal couple, now nearing the end of their 11-day tour of West Germany, spent 90 minutes at the Canadian Army base here before moving on to visit a Royal Air Force base at Gutersloh and a British Army camp at Sennelager. The tour ends Friday at Hamburg.

TROOPS INSPECTED

The Queen divided her time at Fort York, seven miles outside this Westphalian town, between inspecting troops of the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade and acknowledging the cheers of about 3,000 military wives and children.

The royal couple saw Canada's new maple leaf flag in action for the first time as schoolchildren waved scores of them in a red-and-white welcome.

The visit, which began under grey skies on a formal military note with parades, inspection and a jet flypast, wound up in weak sunshine with an emotional farewell as 60 Canadian fourth-graders sang "Will Ye No Come Back Again."

The correspondent of The Times of London with the tour described the visit to the Canadian base as "a much more intimate and homely (homey) affair" than the afternoon ceremonies at the British bases.

Britain Pins Hopes On Atomic Power

LONDON (CP)—A decision to build a new-style nuclear power plant to produce electricity at less cost than conventional power stations was greeted to day as a major development in British science and technology. Scientific experts, politicians and the press predicted the Advanced Gas-cooled Reactor, to be built on the Kent coast with a world-record 1,200,000-kilowatt capacity, will finally establish the competitiveness of atomic energy against conventional fuels in generating electricity.

Did Delay Kill 27?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A delayed fuse on an engine starter may have caused the series of deadly explosions at the Bion Hoa air base in South Viet Nam, it was reported Wednesday.

The U.S. House armed services committee said this was the opinion of air force officers who recently made an on-the-scene investigation. The May 16 disaster took the lives of 27 Americans.

Eaton's Word

Alone Says U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spokesman said Tuesday the U.S. state department has no information from other sources along the lines of a prediction by Cyrus Eaton that the U.S. will be at war with China and Russia in one to four weeks unless it stops bombing North Viet Nam.

Eaton, Cleveland financier-industrialist just back from Prague, Budapest and Moscow, made his forecast Monday in a Detroit speech.

He based it on remarks he said were made to him by Soviet Premier Kossygin, to the effect the U.S. has declared war on Russia, the U.S.S.R. is committed to the defence of North Viet Nam and has "no alternative but to fight."

How To Handle Alcohol

"I am neither a prohibitionist nor a teetotaler... but anyone who takes even one or two drinks a day may be headed for trouble." A Move at Last QUEBEC Attorney-General Claude Wagner's decision to fight force with force by utilizing the full rigor of the law in dealing with separatist hooligans will be applauded throughout Canada.

For too long the Lesage government has remained dangerously motionless on this matter by either ignoring it or pretending that it doesn't exist. Even after the disgraceful demonstrations which so marred the Queen's visit last year, the premier himself sought to minimize the event by blaming "the yellow press" of Canada for exaggerating the situation and creating a false picture of what actually happened.

That Premier Lesage still holds this view to a large extent is evidenced by the fact that just a few weeks ago his government placed a full-page advertisement in a new Quebec weekly journal warning the public that such slanting of the news amounts to "judgment without trial."

"The subjective presentation of facts in journalism," the advertisement reads, "is not, as some might imagine, a manifestation of democratic liberty, because this practice only finds perfect and definite application under a dictatorship, to which the deforming of facts leads, be it only through the anarchy it produces in the judgment of citizens, and in their actions."

Indeed from this and other remarks both he and some of his colleagues have uttered in past months, it might be supposed that Premier Lesage regards the press of Canada as a greater enemy of the people of Quebec than the irresponsible desperados who go by the name of separatists.

Happily, for both Quebec and Canada, Mr. Wagner appears to see things in a different light. Even before he issued his stout warning to the separatists this week, the Quebec attorney-general made it clear that he had no doubts where the blame for Quebec's internal problems should be placed.

After hearing that a well-known Quebec daily had posted a directive to its staff to limit in prominence and even ban entirely some reports about separatism, nationalism, and protests against established authority, Mr. Wagner said this:

"Press censorship is a form of extremism, and extremism in acts, words, and attitudes should be condemned."

"Instructions of that kind (such as issued by the Quebec newspaper) open the door to eventual and serious attacks upon the freedom of the press. In my opinion, any such orders should be condemned."

"As far as I am concerned, I accept criticism or approval as healthy evidence of press freedom. I prefer a free press, even if it may sometimes tend toward excess, to a press that is directed."

By publicly expressing such views and by following the course he has now chosen Mr. Wagner has struck a blow for liberty—and for Canada.

A Free Speaker

MR. DIEFENBAKER has again brought up the suggestion that the House of Commons should have a permanent speaker, and he has promised that his party would not oppose Alan Macnaughton, at the next election, if he were given the post.

Mr. Macnaughton is the Liberal member of Mount Royal, where he has fought six elections successfully, and had a majority of nearly 30,000 over his nearest opponent at the last election.

It is the contention of many, including Mr. Diefenbaker, that it is wise as far as practical for the Speaker of the House to be clear of party politics leaving him to be completely independent and not having to offer a platform to his electors on which he would subsequently not be a supporter but an arbiter.

The quality of justice shown by Canadian speakers in the past has been of a high level and the proposals to create a permanent one is in no way to be construed as a criticism of their work.

Mr. Diefenbaker thinks the time for such a change has come because of the government's current proposals to put a limit on time for debate. With a permanent and completely independent speaker Mr. Diefenbaker says the opposition of the Conservative party on this proposal would not be so vehement as it is.

He says the opposition has the highest regard for Mr. Macnaughton and would like him to be first permanent speaker.

On the other hand the government is understood to be not entirely satisfied with Mr. Macnaughton since he was appointed with Liberal support in 1963. They have found him not sufficiently strong, or perhaps he has not leaned heavily enough to the government side.

Prime Minister Pearson says he is considering the question of a permanent speaker, but he does not agree with the Conservative view that the British method of selecting a speaker—where he is not opposed in his riding in subsequent elections—because it would then deprive that riding of a vote and also of having proper political representation.

While there is some merit to Mr. Pearson's objection, it is difficult to see under the present parliamentary system any other way in which the speaker would not be tied to a party caucus but given the reins of full neutrality which the House has every right to expect.

The fact that over the years the British system has worked well in that country should be enough to assuage Mr. Pearson's fears.

And Ramps?

THE STATEMENT of Mr. Jack Davis, parliamentary assistant to the prime minister, that the government intends to make millions of dollars available for small boat harbors, strikes an encouraging note for the West Coast's boating enthusiasts and for the tourist industry.

Mr. Davis indicates that the federal spending formerly confined to commercial harbors will be extended to building breakwaters, dredging and otherwise creating accommodation for pleasure craft. The scope for work of this type along the coast is tremendous, and the beneficial economic and recreational results of an effective program are beyond doubt.

But the good news would be better with one addition. Mr. Davis says nothing of launching ramps. So many small boats travel these days by both road and sea that these are a most important adjunct of any harbor reached by the former as well as the latter. The federal government at present shows a disinclination to provide them at its wharves.

A change in this policy in connection with the new program would be most welcome.

"She insists—that's where she wants to ride."

The Johnson Doctrine

No Trespassing!

By DR. ARNOLD TOYNBEE from London

IN recent pronouncements,

President Johnson appears to have reaffirmed the United States' Monroe Doctrine, but this with a big geographical difference between his new version of the Doctrine and the original.

In the original Monroe Doctrine, the line inside which the United States vetoed any further encroachments by powers situated on the far side of the line embraced the continental and insular Americas alone. President Johnson's new line embraces large tracts of the Old World too, including some tracts that lie on the threshold of the Soviet Union and of continental China.

In both versions, the Monroe Doctrine is a unilateral warning served on other parties by the United States government, and in both versions again, the "keep-out" notice is linked with a self-denying ordinance. As a sop to the powers that are warned not to trespass on the United States' side of the line, the United States herself renounces any intention of trespassing on the far side of the line.

According to the terms of the original Monroe Doctrine, the warning and the renunciation stood or fell together; so the original Monroe Doctrine was voided by President Truman when he served notice on the Soviet Union to keep out of Turkey and Greece.

Unlike the Truman Doctrine, the Johnson Doctrine seems to be two-sided, as the original Monroe Doctrine was. President Johnson has disclaimed any intention of interfering in what he recognizes as being the Soviet Union's and continental China's spheres of interest. If this is a correct interpretation of President Johnson's meaning, he can be said to have revived the Monroe Doctrine, though, in the act, he has enormously extended the area enclosed within the United States' unilaterally demarcated fence.

How much of the earth's surface does the Johnson Doctrine cover? It certainly covers the Americas in general and the Dominican Republic in particular. But does it cover Cuba?

Does President Johnson hold himself free to do in Cuba, if he finds a chance, what he has now done in the Dominican Republic? And, if any other Latin American country (say Venezuela) were to have a leftward revolution, would President Johnson now send U.S. armed forces there, even without the concurrence of the other Latin American republics, to put a right-wing government back in the saddle?

Outside the Americas, the Johnson Doctrine explicitly covers South Viet Nam, and presumably it also covers South Korea, Formosa, Turkey, Greece, and the European members of NATO, including Western Germany's outpost in West Berlin. Does it cover, besides, all other countries in the Old World that are not now under the direct rule or indirect control of the Soviet Union or China?

For instance, if a leftward revolution were to break out in India, or were to break out again in Jordan or in the Lebanon, would President Johnson contemplate intervening militarily there, in order to make sure that this or that country should not pass out of the "Free World" (i.e. the non-Communist world) into the Communist camp?

Even if the Johnson Doctrine has this widest possible geographical range (and its range is still unclear), it is evident that the United States has, at present, the military power to enforce the doctrine. Neither the Soviet Union nor China is at present prepared to go to war with the United States in order to dispute her flat in territories that she considers to be on her side of the fence.

But, even if the geographical range of the Johnson Doctrine turns out to be the minimum one, the enforcement of it, even within these limits, is going to cost the United States a formidable amount of blood and treasure. She has, no doubt, the power to crush the South Vietnamese guerrillas, but the sacrifice that even this limited operation will exact from her will be very heavy.

However, the United States' present ability to enforce the Johnson Doctrine is not in doubt, supposing that the American people choose to make the necessary sacrifices. The two open questions are, first, for how long is the United States likely to be able to enforce this doctrine, even on a minimum geographical range; and, second, what are going to be the political and ethical consequences of this doctrine if it affects, of freedom to determine their destinies for themselves. The United States has now signified its own determination to impose, by military force, on the people of the Dominican Republic, for instance, and on the people of South Viet Nam, a regime of the United States' own choosing, whether or not this regime represents the will of a majority of the local population.

The interests of the United States (her strategic interests and her interest in not submitting to a reverse) are to override the interests of the people concerned if the two interests conflict. These people are to be denied the regimes that they want, and their countries are to continue to be theatres of war, if this is what the United States considers that her interests require.

The morally serious point in this stand is that it reduces the South Vietnamese, the Dominicans, and perhaps other peoples, too, in the future, to the status of pawns in the United States' struggle for world-power against the Soviet Union and China. They are, in fact, going to be treated, once again, as 'natives' whose interests and wishes do not count and can therefore be ignored and be over-ridden.

This is going to be very provocative, because it is going to be a grievous disappointment of expectations. The Latin American people believed that they had left the status of being 'natives' behind them for ever when the United States renounced the practice of armed intervention in their territories in the case of the Dominican Republic. The peoples of Asia and Africa likewise believed that they would never again be 'natives' after the European colonial powers had abdicated.

If America now steps into the European ex-colonial powers' shoes she is going to draw upon herself far more odium than her predecessors ever incurred. She is going to alienate Asian, African, Latin American, and world-wide liberal opinion, including liberal opinion in the United States itself. The indignation is going to be heightened because the grievance is going to be authentic.

When once a stronger country has decided to override the wishes of a weaker country by force, it has condemned itself to control the weaker country either directly or through the agency of a puppet government, and a puppet government, kept on the throne by the military force of a foreign power to serve this foreign power's interests, can hardly fail to be an unrepresentative government and an oppressive one.

The administration at Washington, backed at present probably by Congress and by a majority of the American people, may take the line that the United States is strong enough militarily to defy the moral judgment of the rest of the world. Perhaps the most apposite comment on this attitude is that Germany, twice within our lifetime, took the same line on the same calculation; and, each time, Germany ran into disaster in the end.

The proposal has been published at a strategic moment just before the Commonwealth heads of state are due to meet here on June 17. And the educational supplement of the London Times has put its editorial weight behind the suggestion, describing it as of "great value and attractiveness."

Dawson says that the many thousands of Commonwealth students attending universities in the developed countries of the organization are not being prepared for their subsequent jobs at home.

"An Indian student of sociology," he says, "is likely to graduate knowing more about the problem of juvenile delinquency in London than about the inter-racial problems of India."

"It is not difficult to imagine the more appropriate courses that the Commonwealth University would provide. In history, for example, the one knows, of course, that the "goodies" are less than the "badies," but the British were able to read Vichy French and Italian telegrams to and from Washington through all relevant periods of the war because of the courage, skill and other talents of a young woman who made full use of the cot in and out of these Washington embassies. She is today a happily married American mother, with no interest whatever in stealing cipher books.

Now that the working writers have struck their pretentious posture and the working critics have issued their pretentious condemnation, perhaps they will get off the lot and leave us to get on with our squalid, amoral but not entirely fictitious entertainment?

This is in keeping with Mr. Barzun's intellectual and moral abhorrence of the spy in contemporary fiction. In life, to sustain our image of our souls, he must be a gentleman of the course would include comparative constitutional history, comparative colonial history of European countries, histories of nationalist movements, economic and political history of a wide range of Commonwealth countries, history of the growth of international agencies and political science.

"Similarly in economics. This emphasis on the relevance of courses would ensure that graduates would be trained in the best possible way for posts in their own countries."

The institution would be controlled by representatives of the Commonwealth countries who would also finance its operation. Britain would volunteer to foot the greater share of the bill.

The Commonwealth prime ministers, conscious of the need for intensified educational projects for the organization, will probably take notice of the idea. It is most unlikely that they would discourage its development.

Many African and Asian universities are finding it difficult to recruit professors and lecturers.

"There is a need for courses in public administration for civil servants of recently independent countries."

"The development of Commonwealth trade creates a need for U.K. and other graduates who are familiar with the economic problems and potentialities of other Commonwealth countries."

The institution, to be located in the U.K. would offer courses studied by the majority of Commonwealth students now attending British universities—such as law, economics, history, sociology and political science. It would also pioneer other courses of particular Commonwealth interest.

Main Purpose Behind the Mission to Japan

Bennett Out to Create Climate for Trade

TOKYO—Don't call the B.C. mission headed by Premier Bennett a trade mission. It's a mission to promote goodwill between Pacific trading partners. Nothing more, it is insisted.

There are several reasons for this reluctance to label the trip a trade mission.

In the first place B.C. has been embarrassed somewhat by requests pouring in from Japanese manufacturers large and small who want the premier and his cabinet ministers to visit their plants.

It's just physically impossible for them to do so in the nine crowded days the mission is spending here before flying off to Hong Kong.

There are plenty of plant tours scheduled but these have been culled to include the largest—steelworks, automobile plants, pulp and paper, a shipyard—in which B.C. has more than passing interest.

Premier Bennett, who received a red-carpet welcome, says hastily that his government doesn't do business with anyone.

It is only here to create the right kind of economic and political climate for carrying on of business between private enterprise groups on both sides of the Pacific.

That is not to say that those cabinet ministers, Premier Bennett among them, who are directors of Hydro and the PGE will not be on the lookout for good buys for these crown corporations.

Tours of a bus plant near here and another plant where rolling stock is manufactured are high up on the list to be visited.

But the government feels, quite honestly, that its main purpose is to reassure the Japanese that B.C. and indeed all Canada are happy to have them as trading partners on the Pacific.

Many Canadians are puzzled by the hesitancy exhibited by Japanese in seeking new North American markets.

If It's Fun, It's Wrong

U.K. Labor Party Reactionary And Puritanical

By JOHN CROSBY, from London

The rear windows of cars on London streets now bear mocking signs: "Don't Blame Me. I Voted Conservative." Some of the bolder thinkers are already beginning to write Labor's obituary—not merely of this government but the party itself.

There is now probably a better than even chance that this evanescent Labor government is approaching its quittance without having achieved anything much of value," writes the Economist, in what it admits is a fairly controversial opinion.

Nevertheless, the swing away from Labor of 10 per cent in the recent local elections was disastrously "large, national, consistent and unmistakable." A similar swing in a parliamentary general election would return the Conservatives to power with a larger majority than any government has enjoyed since the '30s.

A headline in the Daily Telegraph says, "Surprise Fall In Output," over a story that industrial output fell in March for the second straight month, the worst fall since 1963. The only thing that surprises me about this is that anyone should be surprised.

The Labor government, which squeaked into office brandishing the words modernization and dynamism, has been from the outset most astoundingly undynamic and about as modern as 1880 when, it seems, most of its ideas first took root.

The Labor program, if it can be described as a program, has been protective, recessive, defensive, restrictive, deflationary, and pessimistic, when it should have been expansive, aggressive and optimistic.

While the U.S. economy, for instance, reaches new heights by reducing taxes, the British Labor government raises taxes on just about everything and clamps down on investment which is the only way an economy can grow.

I'm particularly astounded and depressed by how reactionary this party is. The epithet once pinned on the Bourbons—they have forgotten nothing and learned nothing—is far more appropriate to Labor.

Every other European socialist party has abandoned nationalization as a very bad idea. Yet nationalization of steel, a step totally irrelevant to the British economy, was given top priority as a matter of party dogma, an exercise in self-indulgence.

In addition to all the economic malarkey, a strong streak of puritanism runs through many of Labor's policies, as a sort of emotional motivation.

Recently the expense account, which in Britain, like everywhere else, has been abused, was practically abolished. One got the clear impression that the Labor politicians wanted to do away with expense account luncheons, not to stop the drain on tax money but simply because they disapproved of a good lunch at the Savoy.

This same streak of puritanism runs through the socialist intellectuals. Recently Paul Johnson in the New Statesman uttered a blast of dismay at the British "renaissance" which has brought acclaim to Britain's

They show a certain timidity that is rooted in fear of rebuff.

A Japanese businessman would sooner advance half a step in these markets and have it uncontested than to attempt two steps and be shoved back one.

Japanese heavy industry is beginning to supply the needs of large projects in B.C.'s expansion program. Hydro has bought both generators and penstocks here for the Peace River.

Industrialists here are quick to adapt their products to North American needs.

But while doing so there is a feeling that perhaps the product is being regarded as somehow foreign and therefore to be judged by other standards than those applied to North American goods.

A case arose in B.C. not long ago when on first examination it appeared that a Japanese firm had submitted the lowest bid on 60 new buses for Hydro.

On examination of the bids in detail by engineers, however, the Japanese buses didn't fully meet requirements and some other company got the order.

A cabinet minister was finally called in to assure the business group from Japan that their bid had been turned down entirely on the facts of the case.

"They still have the feeling deep inside that we don't accept them," the minister says.

Premier Bennett and his mission are going to try to change that feeling to something more neighborly.

B.C. like Japan must trade to live well. The markets on the rim of the Pacific ocean total nearly three quarters of the world's population. Living standards, it's felt, must go up. We want to be in on the ground floor.

VIEWPOINT

pop singers and actors, and dress designers.

Britain, he said, should be selling ships or computers or heavy electrical goods rather than "taking refuge in the luxury trades—whisky, high fashion, entertainment, tourism. Let's not kid ourselves about a renaissance. This is national senescence."

Except that it isn't. Johnson is apparently unaware that the world's most important commodity is not steel, oil or cotton anymore. It's tourists who last year poured $9,000,000,000 into various countries and generated another $29,000,000,000 in wages, taxes and purchases.

Entertainment is very big business indeed. In fact, six British-made pictures (the James Bond films, Lawrence of Arabia, the Beatles film, and Tom Jones) earned as much as the whole British computer industry last year. High fashion is also a huge business.

The trouble is all these things are fun and therefore, according to the socialists, wrong. If the money isn't made deep down in the earth with a miner's lamp and isn't smelly and sweaty, then the socialists don't believe it's important.

The modern automated world where leisure is getting to be the biggest business of all the socialists don't understand at all.

Prices Take Sharp Dip Near Close

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials, after gaining fractionally through most of the session, moved to a downside position. The speculative lists were relatively quiet and price movements were narrow. Senior base metals declined.

Among industrials Massey-Ferguson traded 22 1/2 shares and lost 1/2 to 26 1/2. In Port fell 1/2 to 5 1/2 and TransCanada Pipe also lost 1/2 to 37 1/2.

Rothmans and International Utilities each gained 1/2 to 26 and 33 1/2.

Among the speculative list, Spence and Anglo United Development each lost 1/2 to 15 1/2 and 15 1/2. Bank of Montreal rose 1/2 to 15 1/2. In other speculative oil action, Genex lost 1/2 to 19 1/2 and traded 107,750 shares among penny prices.

Denison fell 1/2 to 20 1/2 in senior base metals and Inco 1/2 to 9 1/2. Cominco lost 1/2 to 45 1/2.

Home A rose 1/2 to 21 1/2 among senior western oils and Central Del Rio added 1/2 to 11 1/2. Calgary and Edmonton, trading on a cash basis, fell 1/2 to 27 1/2.

New Tops Made

VANCOUVER — Dominion Industries common was active and higher at 9.00 while "A" rose to a new high of 28.

In mines Bethlehem strengthened to 7.35, Granite to 2.65, and New Imperial to 2.18. St. Lawrence Chief also made a high at 4.9 but most others were easier. Granduc was 7.10, Galaxy 7.00 and Caribou 6.00.

Share at 75 and Royal Albert at 1.09 were active among oils.

Senior Oils Down

MONTREAL (CP) — Stocks closed lower with the exception of papers.

Du Pont dropped 1/2 to 5 1/2. Ashes rose 1/2 to 28 1/2.

Calgary Power lost 1/2 to 22 and B.C. Telephone 1/2 to 68 1/2. Bell Telephone rose 1/2.

Bank of Montreal fell 1/2 to 65 1/2. Nova Scotia added 1/2 to 78 1/2.

MacMillan Bloedel rose 1/2 to 34 1/2 and Consolidated 1/2 to 45 1/2. Fraser dropped 1/2 to 34 1/2.

Senior oils were lower with Teno down 1/2 to 55 1/2 and Imperial 1/2 to 56 1/2.

Metals were lower. In the base section, Noranda lost 1/2 to 54. In the primaries, Dominion Foundries fell 1/2 to 29 1/2.

Among speculative mines, Jubilee rose 1/2 to 15 1/2. Black Hawk dropped 1/2 to 35 1/2.

Pendulum Swings

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pendulum swung to the downside after rising earlier in the day. Trading was moderate.

The market held a respectable par until early afternoon, then some of the gainers began to wilt. Traders stepped in to sell at the sign of weakness and the net fell below halfness and the net fell below halfness and the net fell below halfness.

A huge trade of 296,800 shares in Consolidated Cigar at 49 was more than enough to make that issue the volume leader for the day. A brokerage firm was reported to have acted for an institutional investor in the sale of the stock.

It was one of the biggest blocks in stock exchange history.

Firms' Silence Spells Success

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Some idea of the size and importance of the new oil field on the Alberta side of the R.C. border near Rainbow Lake may be given today when the Alberta government opens bids for permits and leases in the district.

Some experts believe that the new field, roughly east of Fort Nelson, could be the biggest in Canada and might easily double the Alberta oil reserves.

As only three or four holes have so far been drilled in the area, the optimism might appear excessive.

However, the drilling companies have kept extremely mum about their discoveries, and several of the interested parties have already made applications to build pipelines into the area. These are sure signs that big things are stirring.

Unadulterated Security

Both Banff and Dynamic shares were strong in an otherwise weak oil market before the close of trading Wednesday.

The 60-year-old Victoria real estate firm of Ker and Stephenson Ltd. has elected Jack Roberts president in succession to Col. B. R. Ker.

It is the first time the top position in the firm has not been held by one or other of the founders from whom the firm's name is taken.

Mr. Roberts was born in Esquimalt and for 35 years has been in the insurance business, mostly in eastern Canada.

He returned to the coast a few years ago and in 1959 joined Ker and Stephenson.

R. H. B. Ker will continue as chairman of the board and Col. B. R. Ker will take a new post of vice-chairman.

Mr. Roberts, who said there would be no change in company policy or personnel, is president of the Victoria Insurance Agents Association and a director of the B.C. Insurance Agents Association.

Back in the Red

Bad weather and rising costs caused the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to slip back into the red in 1964, after making a small net profit in the previous year.

The railway, which reported a loss of $1,000,000 for the year, said it was "back in the red" due to "unusually heavy losses" in the coal and lumber trades.

The railway's losses were "unusually heavy" due to "unusually heavy losses" in the coal and lumber trades.

Western Steakhouses, Men

Tax Evasion Costs $57,500

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two companies and four of their directors — all involved in the operation of steakhouses in Western Canada — were fined $57,500 Wednesday on charges of income tax evasion.

The principals pleaded guilty in provincial police court to evading $83,000 in taxes during a four-year period.

MEAL CHECKS

C. Diltz, counsel for the national revenue department, said the scheme for suppressing taxable income involved removal and destruction of original meal checks and the substitution of meal checks made out for lesser amounts.

Mr. Diltz said that during the years 1959 to 1962 total income tax evaded was in excess of $83,000 based on a total suppression of taxable income in excess of $200,000.

GUILTY PLEAS

Fines against the companies and directors totalled $57,500 — and are in addition to the tax assessment which must be met.

Guilty pleas were entered on behalf of Hy's Steak Loft Ltd. and Boyd Investments Ltd., a holding company.

Individuals pleading guilty were Jack Shatz, 44, and Barry Lercher, 38, of Winnipeg. Hyman Aisenstat, 39, of Vancouver, and Mitchell Klimova, 35, of Edmonton.

ALL SHARED

Magistrate G. L. Cousley fined Hy's Steak Loft Ltd. and Boyd Investments $20,750 each.

$100 TRADE BONUS

OLDER CAR MORTGAGE TELMAC NO MONEY DOWN

Shatz was fined $6,000. Aisenstat, $5,000 and Lercher and Klimova $2,500 each.

Mr. Diltz said the tax-evasion scheme was conceived by Aisenstat, implemented by Shatz and that all four individuals "shared in the ill-gotten gains."

Shipbuilders' Bidding Under Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — A joint committee of federal officials and shipbuilders' representatives is to be set up to study steps involved in competitive bidding on federal ship construction and repair work, Industry Minister Drury said Tuesday.

He said the Ship Construction Association has agreed to the government's announced intention of calling for competitive bidding on ship work.

NOT DISCOURAGED

He also said the question of regional bidding was neither raised nor discussed at a meeting he had here last week with Canadian shipbuilders.

He said he provided the builders for the first time with a long-range forecast of all federal ship building and repair work covering the period 1965-70.

Low Grades Of Wheat For China

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's latest wheat sale to China again consists of lower grades and durum, the Canadian wheat board said Wednesday.

The sale of 58,700,000 bushels was announced Tuesday. Precise value was not announced but at current prices the deal would be worth more than $100,000,000.

The board said the sale is for 1,500,000 long tons with a tolerance of five per cent either way. If the full amount is taken, it will reach 58,700,000 bushels.

Bulk of the sale consists of Nos. 4 and 5 and durum grades, with a limited quantity of No. 3 Northern.

Guards Killed In Sheep Clash

ISTANBUL (AP) — Two Turkish guards have been killed and another wounded in a border dispute over 200 sheep. Guards at a post on the Syrian border seized 200 sheep from a band of Syrian smugglers last week. The Syrians returned armed and recaptured the sheep.

School Singers Hurt on Stage

PARAMUS, N.J. (AP) — Fifteen youngsters were injured when a row of overhead stage lights and a curtain rod fell on top of a choral group about to perform at Paramus High School.

A Piece of a Sign A Sign of Peace

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some peace workers make their own signs, and some improvise on the work of others.

No Trespassing, says a sign on a construction project in Vancouver's West End.

And neatly lettered underneath is: In Viet Nam.

Petition to Queen

Big Quebec Vote Asks for Curb On Upper House

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — The Quebec legislature voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to petition Queen Elizabeth to sharply reduce the powers of Quebec's upper house — the Legislative Council.

The Liberal-dominated legislature also approved by the same vote of 44-13 an address to Governor-General Vanier asking him to forward the petition to the Queen.

VETO RESTRICTED

If the monarch agreed, the veto power of the Union Nationale-controlled upper house would be restricted so that money bills would automatically pass one month after rejection by the council. Other bills would become law one year later in the following session.

Premier Lesage told newsman Prime Minister Pearson had informally assured him the petition would be forwarded to her majesty with a favorable recommendation.

The address was opposed by the opposition in heated and often bitter debate. It was described as "a return to colonialism" because the legislature has the right to amend its own constitution.

The government, on the other hand, contended it was the only way out of the deadlock with the upper house which rejected the lower house's proposal to cut its powers.

PROMISE DENIED

In Ottawa Prime Minister Pearson said he has made no promise to Premier Lesage that the federal government will support his petition to the Queen.

In Quebec Francois Leduc, France's ambassador to Canada, said he has received from Ottawa the draft of an agreement between France and Canada concerning pacts made with individual provinces on matters within their jurisdiction.

New-Rule Hopes Fade in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Hopes of early agreement among the government and opposition parties on proposed Commons rules changes faded slightly Wednesday after arrangements had been informally worked out on a couple of points of disagreement.

The parties had agreed informally on a trial period for proposed rules changes and to an increase in the membership of some of the new standing committees suggested in the rules-change resolutions.

But negotiations were reported to have struck a serious snag over a proposal for allocation of time to debate various legislative measures and on the question of a permanent speaker to preside over the Commons.

There was no immediate indication whether the negotiations among House leaders of the five political parties will be resumed.

The trial period for the new rules was expected to cover the rest of the current parliamentary session and at least another session after which the rules would be reviewed.

On 19 of the new standing committees, the government has proposed total membership of 22 MPs. This is to be boosted to 24 MPs, providing the New Democrats with two committee members instead of one as envisaged in the government's proposals.

TWO THIRDS

The serious points of disagreement involve Progressive Conservative insistence that the length of debates on individual items of business must not be fixed without the approval of two-thirds of the 265 MPs.

Under the government's proposal the allocation of time could be made by simple majority.

In effect, the opposition proposal would give the Progressive Conservatives a veto since they hold 94 Commons seats.

Grain-Dock Peace Possible

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for grain handlers said Wednesday night the union would try to prevent a strike before a mediation meeting scheduled Monday.

The meeting was arranged by federal mediator Don Tyson in an effort to head off a strike by the 450 handlers that would result in a tie-up of grain shipments from the ports of Vancouver and New Westminster.

A spokesman for the International Union of Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers (CLC) said Mr. Tyson had indicated the five companies involved were prepared to meet.

WHY DON'T YOU CHILDREN GO PLAY A GAME OR SOMETHING?

WANNA PLAY "HOUSE" DITTO?

OKAY

I'LL BE THE LITTLE BOY WHO KEEPS GETTING INTO THE COOKIES!

THAT COUPLE IS A NATURAL. MERRY! A GOOD PROMOTION. PLUG THE DAY BEFORE THEY APPEAR AND "GAIN AND FORTUNE" WILL TOP THE METRO RATING.

THE PUFF'S PASS

IF THEY APPEAR HALF THE GIRL IS SOLD. BUT KIMAD SEEMS TO WANT OUT.

LOOK, HONEY—I KNOW WE BOTH NEED DOUGH. BUT I DON'T WANT TO MAKE A SACK OF MYSELF ON A NATION-WIDE IDIOT-LOOP.

OH, IF YOU LIKE TO SEE ME LOCKED OUT OF MY ROOM FOR NOT PAYING THE BACK RENT.

ALL RIGHT, AHEAD! WE'LL DO IT! IF EVERYBODY UNDERSTANDS THAT YOU AND I AREN'T—

ENGAGED?—DON'T WORRY. I'VE PROMISED MYSELF I'LL NEVER MARRY A POOR MAN—EVEN IF HE IS STRONG AND HANDSOME—AND AWFULLY SWEET.

NO, ARCHIE? WHAT DO YOU SUGGEST?

BETTY, DO YOU HAVE MUCH HOMEWORK?

I'LL SEND JUSHEAD OVER WITH SOME NOTES I NEED TYPED UP!

ARCHIE, ANDREW!

I'VE USED UP TWO TUBES OF KISSPROOF LIPSTICK, AND I STILL DON'T KNOW IF IT WORKS!

GEE? WHY DIDN'T YOU ASK ME?

IT WORKS!

SHEIK SAYUM BEY TELLS ME YOU AND HIS DAUGHTER FELL IN LOVE WHILE YOU WERE SURVEYING HIS OIL FIELDS, MR. MOORE! SO THE CAPE-AND-DAGGER BIT IS JUST A ROMANTIC NAME! RIGHT?

I CONFESS NOW, SGT. DRAKE... IT WAS TO KEEP ASIA AWAY FROM THIS LOW-BORN CUR THAT I SOUGHT YOUR HELP!

WE THOUGHT, IF SHE HAD OUT—UNTIL YOU WENT HOME... WE COULD BE MARRIED, SIR—

Garden Notes

They Revel in Heat

By M. V. CHESNUT

For some little time now we have been discussing those problem flower-beds out around the front of the house—very much in the public eye—and what kinds of summer-flowering plants to buy for furnishing them.

If your house faces south or southwest, with a real hot, dry, sun-baked bed out front, you could do a lot worse than to take a tip from our fuddy-duddy Victorian ancestors and plant it up with a bold mass of the old-fashioned scarlet geraniums.

These plants are real heat-lovers and will revel in conditions that would sizzle the juices out of stocks or panies.

Geraniums are rather expensive to buy—at least, if you need any great number of them to make a showing. Small plants will set you back around $2.50 per box of 12, or about $5.25 per dozen for larger plants in four-inch pots; the latter will probably be furnished with buds and all set to burst into bloom.

While the first cost may be high, you can get a lot of mileage out of geraniums, for if you are a smart gardener, you can keep your plants alive in the basement through the winter to use again. Geraniums are also extremely easy to propagate from slips, so you can always get more plants from your first batch.

I never use manure in the preparation of the beds for geraniums, for heavy feeding makes the growth almost as lush and mappy as a rhubarb leaf and you wind up with giant plants, all leaf and no flowers. Besides, mellow old rotted manure is too precious a commodity to waste on plants that don't appreciate it.

I am a bit chary about using chemical fertilizer on these plants too, for I lost a batch one year due, I suspect, to some ingredient or impurity in the fertilizer.

If the soil is very sandy or gravelly or if it is a heavy clay loam, I dig in peat moss, which hasn't much food value but is grand stuff for improving the texture of the soil, making clay less sticky and more easily worked and giving sandy ground a greater ability to retain moisture.

For fertilizer, bone meal is the stuff for these plants—bone meal and wood ashes. I use two cups of bone meal and four of wood ashes to the square yard in preparing the bed, scattering it evenly on the surface and raking it into the surface shallowly.

I break the soil down moderately with the rake after digging, but not too much, for geraniums do better in slightly lumpy than in powdery fine soil. Following the digging, fertilizing and raking, I tread the bed much more firmly than for any other flower—just as firmly as for Brussels sprouts.

Really firm soil produces a stocky, short-jointed plant with well-ripened stems and a good head of bloom from every joint.

The plants are set in the ground on the slant, with the main stem sloping toward the back of the bed at an angle of about 30 degrees.

After planting, the tip of each plant is nipped off. This beheading causes side shoots to arise from every leaf joint, each one growing vertically from the sloping main stem, and each one of these secondary shoots should bear a good head of flowers. In this way, you get more blooms per square yard and a much more lavish display than if the plants had been set in upright.

I have an idea that by this time next year our commercial greenhouse men will be offering us seed-grown plants of the new geranium Nittany Lion, developed by Penn State University and named after its famous mascot.

This is the first red geranium to come true from seed, making a free-flowering compact plant seldom more than 14 inches tall, and blooming in six months from sowing. Seeds are still very expensive $1 for a packet of 25 seeds.

ART BUCHWALD Writes a Cowboy Script

All Blackfeet Anti-Apache

Whenever I get tired writing about politics, I like to write a cowboy script. I've been working on one lately about Lyndon Baines, the famous mayor of Great Bird Falls.

In the opening scene, the tall, kindly mayor is addressing the people in front of the Great Society saloon.

"Now folks," he says, "Ah'm happy to announce that everyone is going to get more water, more schooling, and better medical care, and it is my intention to see that Great Bird Falls becomes the most wonderful town in the country and its citizens the happiest people in the world."

The townspeople cheer, but suddenly a cowboy rides into town, jumps off his horse and says breathlessly, "The Shawnees are fighting with the Blackfeet Indians, mayor."

"That's no concern of ours," the mayor says.

"But the Blackfeet are being led by Apaches,"

"Apaches?" says the mayor incredulously. "How do you know?"

"I have the names of 53 Apaches here in my pocket who are fighting on the side of the Blackfeet."

"Where did you get this list?" the mayor wants to know.

"It was given to me by the Shawnees."

The mayor is grim. "We have no choice but to send in the cavalry to protect the lives of the white women and children."

"But there are no white women and children in the area."

"We'll send some in with the cavalry," the mayor says. The next scene shows the U.S. cavalry riding up the canyon into Indian territory. They arrive just as the Blackfeet are about to attack the Shawnees.

The cavalry takes up positions between the two tribes and the colonel announces he has come to protect the lives and property of the white man.

The Blackfeet, furious at the interference, start sending up smoke signals denouncing the U.S. cavalry and the mayor of Great Bird Falls.

The colonel demands that the Blackfeet surrender and give up their Apaches. The chief of the Blackfeet denies he has any Apaches in his tribe.

"We anti-Apache," he tells the colonel. "All Blackfeet want is freedom."

The colonel goes to see the chief of the Shawnees and asks him to give up, but the chief says the Shawnees are the only ones who can keep the territory from going Apache. He demands the right to clean out the Blackfeet once and for all.

The colonel sends back word to the mayor: "Can't tell the good Indians from the bad Indians. Please send instructions."

The mayor dispatches four deputies who meet with the chiefs and ask them to form a coalition tribe made up of Shawnees and Blackfeet.

But chief says, "Ugh."

In the meantime the Blackfeet and Shawnees start taking pot shots at the cavalry. So the cavalry starts firing back.

The mayor finally calls on the Organization of Indian Chiefs to help him out.

The grizzled chief of the Organization says to the Mayor, "How?"

DR. STUART ROSENBERG on Behaviorism

Man More Than Reason

Some people confuse religion that day is to suggest an irrational reason—he saw empty bottles in the street on the way to work; that is why he did not have luck.

His own fears and doubts about the success of that day, however, are the essential problem—the bottles, a symbol of his desire to disguise his fear.

Yet, one teacher correctly judged men when he said: "Civilized people lose their religion easily but rarely their superstitions."

Often this is so very true. At moments of crisis in our lives, some of us lose the power of reason, even of common sense, and begin to latch on to moods which produce irrational behavior.

Superstition creeps into our lives at crucial moments, sickness and death. Yet, ask the average man if he thinks of himself as being superstitious, and his answer very likely will be like that woman in the story. She was asked to tell of her favorite superstition, and she said, as she touched wood: "Thank God, I haven't got any."

Superstition is irrational behavior, dressed up in a way as to make it seem rational. The power which man has—the divine gift to use his mind, to exercise his insight, he fritters away by making himself powerless when he could be more powerful.

An easy way for a man to blame his own lack of success

But beware of the man who confuses the non-rational or poetical aspects of human life with irrational behavior. Irrational behavior is not only the enemy of reason, it also perverts emotion. Anyone who can love another to death is obviously acting irrationally.

Those who can pervert the emotions in such a way as to destroy reality, and create disharmony, do not provide us with a good example of the way in which the feeling or the emotional side of life should be approached.

Thus it is that high religion is the enemy of irrationality, while it is perfectly willing to accept the non-rational aspects of life as normal and healthy.

The function of religion is to make man aware of his own powers and to point from this awareness to that behavior which is good, beautiful and true.

To believe in God, therefore, cannot mean that we believe in the powerlessness of man.

To believe in God, must mean that we have an awareness of the laws of nature, as well as the laws of morality.

To believe in God is to destroy the illusion which is a vestige of the ancient idolatrous world, that the world is populated by spirits, demons and goblins who act capriciously on their own and control the universe in a way not susceptible to law and order.

To believe in God is to reach the height of faith in man—that man is capable of increasing his reasoning powers to understand more.

We may not be able to explain fully why we love those whom we do—always a mystery enshrouds love and its final and ultimate significance eludes us. But this does not suggest that because we do not understand completely, we must not love.

The existence of a mystery in the universe is what makes us men and not gods. But a divine gift is given to man to use his reason as far as it will go. It is this which can make us man and not animals.

Honor Leaf Flag, Legionnaires Urge

The Royal Canadian Legion's and Dominion Command representatives will urge its national governing body to take early action to see that the maple leaf flag is displayed and honored by the legion.

The flag resolution was one of 85 considered by the legion at its Victoria convention, which ended Wednesday.

The resolution will go to the legion's Dominion Command convention later this year.

BETTER PENSIONS

The 483 delegates urged improved basic disability pension rates, to bring them on a par with the rates of the lowest paid unskilled laborer.

The recent 10 per cent increase gives a rate of $2,400 a year, against the prevailing civil service rate of $3,500.

The legion urges an increase of a further 40 per cent.

NOT PRACTICAL

The delegates called "impractical" a proposed program of handing over control of veterans' hospitals to local authorities.

This has already been done in Ontario.

Delegates said handing over control of veterans' hospitals would not solve the bed shortage problem faced by many hospitals in B.C.

NEW PRESIDENT

New Pacific Command president is J. C. Hall of Trail.

Other officers are Dave Hunter, South Vancouver, first vice-president; Rev. H. E. Harris, Port Coquitlam, second vice-president; A. A. Lamb, Robson, third vice-president; and J. M. Cates, Alberni, fourth vice-president.

Francis J. Townsend is honorary treasurer, Thomas McEwan, Vancouver, is chairman.

Ontario Welfare Up 15 Per Cent

TORONTO (CP)—The provincial government has authorized municipalities to increase welfare allowances 15 per cent for rent, food, clothes, household maintenance and sundries. A spokesman for the department of welfare said the increase is in line with rising costs of living.

$50,000 Grant

VANCOUVER (CP)—A $50,000 grant to Notre Dame University in Nelson will be made by the Knights of Columbus in B.C. The money will go toward a micro-film library.

Health Minister Eric Martin told delegates B.C. owes much of its growth to fears of U.S. expansion.

At the time of the treaty setting the 49th parallel as Canada's border, there was virtually no organized British settlement north of the border, he said. Fears of U.S. influence prompted Sir James Douglas, governor of Vancouver Island, to push the British colonial office into joining the colonies of Vancouver Island and B.C. in 1866.

LOYAL TO CROWN

At the time, British Columbians were more loyal to the crown than to Canada, but gradually a feeling of nationalism grew. This nationalism never supplanted the British Columbian's loyalty to the crown.

"BRUCE"

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

They turned back the clock 50 years in Lewiston, Maine, on Tuesday night. It was on April 5, 1915, that Jess Willard won the world heavyweight championship with the great Jack Johnson reportedly still alert enough to shield his eyes from the blazing Havana sun as he was counted out in the 26th round.

Sonny Liston, who viewers will agree is a far better actor than was Johnson, set the stage for the revival of an old script in the shambles that was Tuesday's fight. Willard's victory was the climax of years of searching for a "white hope" to dethrone Johnson. And now the stage is set for George Chuvalo, a Canadian who suddenly and rather inexplicably became a world championship contender, to become the new white hope.

Perhaps many fans overlooked a most significant development in the stunned aftermath of the stunning proceedings they had just seen Tuesday. It came after the fight when Cassius Clay had informed the world that he wanted "The Harp" next and Floyd Patterson was consenting to the promised action under the questioning of announcer Steve Ellis.

Hands belonging to unseen owners were tugging desperately at Patterson as the interview began and, finally, they practically yanked him out of camera and microphone range.

It was as if someone wanted to make certain that no hard-to-avoid commitments would be made by the excited Clay and the, as ever, rather demure Patterson. And there had to be time to get in that so obviously phoney confrontation between Clay and Chuvalo, who climbed into the ring to start the publicity drums beating.

Yesterday, the veritable strong-arming of Patterson became really significant as Clay, probably taught his lines overnight, made a switch and announced that "the onliest man I think has a chance with me is George Chuvalo."

The pieces are beginning to fit, and it adds up to a long-range plan, begun some time back, to milk a gullible public through manipulation of the heavyweight championship.

It could have started before the first Clay-Liston fight, a signing brought off only after it was agreed that Clay's first defence of the championship, if he won it, was to be promoted by the promotional firm of which Liston is at least the nominal head. To make certain that contractual agreements were lived up to, part of Clay's purse was held up until the contract for the return go.

It's history how Liston lost the title sitting on his stool and claiming a sore shoulder made it unable for him to continue. This set the stage for return-bout uncertainty needed to bring out fans for the over-priced seats to closed circuit television.

In the meantime, something had to be done about future opponents for Clay, a young man of still-unknown capabilities who could be kept on the heavyweight throne for some time—quite profitably, if enough people were made acceptable as opponents.

And that's about where Chuvalo made his appearance. The heavyweight division was practically barren, the likes of Ernie Terrell, Eddie Machen, Cleveland Williams and Patterson among its top challengers.

All had past records of varying degrees of futility, mostly hopeless. And, more to the point, the heavyweight division, even more than other divisions, was dominated by colored fighters. What was obviously needed was a "white hope," and Clay long since got the wheels started in this direction in one of his many pronouncements.

There was a problem here, too, as one was not readily available and a manufacturing process had to be started. Apparently, the best material was considered to be Chuvalo. His record was thoroughly undistinguished but a Canadian championship was at least something on which to build.

Chuvalo, it has been read, came under the management of a U.S. group and the Torontonian, who had become a used-car salesman when it seemed there was no future for him in boxing, was relaunched. Presto, Chuvalo got himself a fight with Patterson and came out of the defeat with a brand-new reputation as a dangerous punching bag.

And now, it seems, the next scene in the serialized play "heavyweight fiction" has become as about to be presented to a public which is likely to have enough short memories to make it pay off again. Chuvalo in the next few months is likely to assume somewhat heroic proportions as a white, perhaps even Christian, hope with a chance to slay the Muslim dragon.

It can develop in any one of several ways. It could be that Patterson, who seems to be content to hang around as a sort of a bemused beggar waiting for the crumbs, will get the first chance. But the tip-off seems to be in Clay's assertion that Chuvalo is the logical next offering and that the fight should be held outdoors. That last one could indicate the show director has developed a fear, after Tuesday's act, that closed-circuit television may not be so profitable next time around and that the smart move would be to try for a large "live" gate.

Chuvalo, as a "white hope" would be the better attraction for the outdoor fight. Besides, Patterson could be dangerous unless he can be convinced that it could be more profitable to accept the assigned role rather than try to steal the picture. And he's still young enough to be kept around to fill in next while another "bona fide" challenger can be produced by the hacks. If this takes time, there is always Liston.

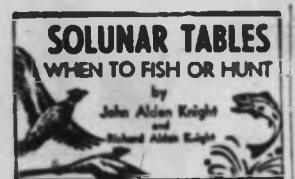

Liston? Surely, you may think, they really wouldn't dare try that again. But just don't bet on it. If Liston carries out his announced intention of continuing to fight, a few quick knockouts and time would at least put him up there again as an emergency stand-by. The fellow writing the script for this surely is a master of the big lie.

It doesn't seem possible that anyone would dare to dub in a scene which would see Liston knocked out in the first round by one lastly thrown punch which landed high on the side of his face after what happened the first time Liston and Clay met. Nor, surely, would anyone dare let a championship be decided without a visible count and then have it declared a new record for speed of decision despite evidence that it was two minutes and 11 seconds after the fight started that Clay's hand was raised. But it happened, and already I've read two columnists who maintain it wasn't a fix because it was too obvious.

Barnum surely was a master of understatement.

Fight Fiasco Rocks Fistic World

(From Colonist News Services) A storm of protest, amounting to a revolution, raged yesterday around the world in the aftermath of Cassius Clay's successful defence of the world heavyweight boxing championship Tuesday night.

"This is the worst, most offensive debasement of boxing that I've ever seen or read about," sputtered former-champion Gene Tunney, who saw the action on closed-circuit television.

Tunney, an ex-Marine who retired unbeaten, said that he refused to stand when the piped version of the American national anthem came over the screen.

"Our anthem means too much to me to see it debased like this," he fumed. "I was particularly offended at the presence in the ring of the United States Marine Corps and the playing of the anthem at an event involving two completely reprehensible characters like the fellow who calls himself Muhammad Ali and this fellow, Liston. I wish Jack Dempsey and I could go back and take on those two."

Dempsey, who lost his title to Tunney and his chance at regaining it when the count was delayed until he got into a neutral corner, agreed.

"Maybe the federal government will act now," Dempsey said. "Boxing is going from bad to worse. It's gotten to be a joke."

Jim Farley, former New York State boxing commissioner, put it another way.

"District attorney Garrett Byrne of Boston, and all Massachusetts officials who were in any way active in preventing the fight from taking place in their state are to be congratulated," he said.

"FIASCO"

"A shocking fiasco," said Sol Silverman, chairman of the California Committee for Safeguards in Boxing, as he urged federal legislation. "States which will not permit such a match to be held within its confines should also bar the closed-circuit television of that match."

And so it went. In Pennsylvania, four Democrats introduced legislation which would outlaw boxing in that state. In Washington, a member of the House of Representatives proposed that the U.S. Congress investigate the fight.

They had plenty of support.

"WORST MESS"

"The worst mess in the history of all sports," wrote columnist Jimmy Breslin of the New York Herald-Tribune.

"They should have searched Liston for concealed sleeping powders," said syndicated columnist Red Smith.

"Clay knocked out Liston with an elite loop of a right hand that didn't seem destructive enough to crush a grape," wrote columnist Jimmy Cannon.

"I've been hit harder by a shot of whisky," said comedian Joe E. Lewis.

And it extended to Europe.

"TAKES DIVE"

"A 60-second stinker," headlined the London Evening News.

"Liston took a dive. Spectators throughout the world are convinced they watched the most sordid fix," related the France Soir in Paris.

"Faraday of a fight," was the headline on the fight story in the Geneva daily, La Suisse.

"Cassius Clay, the brahmin who preached his infallibility, is still the world heavyweight king. God save the king and heaven save boxing," wrote Reg Gutteridge, who covered the fight for the London Evening News.

"SQUALID SHEMAZZLE"

"A squalid little shemazzle," was the sum-up of George Whiting in the London Evening Standard.

"My wife, Barbara, can take a bigger punch than Liston," said Terry Downes, former world middleweight champion.

"Not everyone was in accord. 'Just marvelous' was the way former-champion Ingemar Johansson described the 'philly-tom' punch which decked Liston. Coincidentally, Swedish boxing promoter Edwin Alquist announced he hopes to stage a title bout between Clay and Floyd Patterson in Sweden, where Patterson is a sort of an adopted hero."

And in the Arab world, something that happened in the United States was finally greeted with elation. "A remarkable achievement by the first Moslem heavyweight champion in history," crowed announcers and newspapers.

White Sox Skid

Twins Power Way to First

Minnesota Twins, a good-hit, no-field club which could be a bit short of pitching, are making like their muscle could be enough to win the American League championship.

A club which last year finished seventh despite its 221 home runs because of a defence which permitted 91 unearned runs, the Twins went out front last night with another display of home-run power.

Bob Allison, who hit one with two mates aboard, Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva each hit one out of the park as the Twins bested Boston Red Sox, 5-7, in a typical display. Winners made two errors and used up four pitchers but slugged their way out of it just the way they did on Tuesday night, when they hit five home runs.

With Chicago White Sox losing for the sixth time in seven games, 1-3, Cleveland Indians, the Twins went ahead by seven percentage points.

It was a surprise two-out bunt in the seventh inning which brought Pittsburgh Pirates their sixth straight win and moved them out of the National League basement.

Pinchhitter Manny Mota laid it down and beat it out as Andre Rodgers scored the run which broke a 3-3 tie and led to a 5-3 win over Philadelphia Phillies.

In the key game at Los Angeles, St. Louis Cardinals handed Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers his third loss in nine decisions with a 2-1 victory.

Scroggs' victory meant the difference between a 4-5 and 3-4 defeat as Doug Munroe remained unbeaten by defeating Claude Heggie, 4 and 3, and combining with Bigelow for a 2 and 1 four-ball win.

Result left Victoria leading Uplands after two rounds, 11-10.

At Colwood, Gorge Vale divided the nine points evenly with the host club. Art Donaldson and George Murphy, also perfect to date, started with the maximum three points for the visitors but Roger Ross and Rickie Kent finished with three points for Colwood.

UPLANDS 4 at VICTORIA 5

Laurie Carroll lost to Bill McColl, 4 and 3; Eric Wright lost to Vaughan Trapp, 3 and 1; Carroll and Wright lost four-ball, 6 and 5.

Bob Hunt defeated Ralph Flanagan 4 and 3; Eric Hibbertson defeated Ron Scott-Moncrieff, 3 and 2.

Frank Scroggs defeated George Bigelow, 1 up; Claude Heggie lost to Doug Munroe, 4 and 3; Scroggs and Bigelow lost four-ball, 2 and 3.

GORGE VALE 4 at COLWOOD 4

Art Donaldson defeated Laurie Kerr, 1 up; George Murphy defeated Bill McColl, 1 up; Donaldson and Murphy won four-ball, 1 and 2.

Dave Flanagan defeated Vic Palmer, 4 and 3; Al MacLeod lost to Gorge Vale, 4 and 3; four-ball match halved.

John Carlson lost to Roger Ross, 1 and 2; George Jones lost to Rickie Kent, 2 and 1; Carlson and Jones lost four-ball, 1 and 2.

Let's Play Vancouver Every Day

Victoria Shamrocks are enjoying unusual success against Vancouver Carlings — defending Mann Cup champions—as the Inter-City Lacrosse League schedule hits the one-quarter pole.

The Shamrocks won their third game in four starts against Vancouver Wednesday night, 11-5, by scoring three of about 1,700 fans at Memorial Arena.

Victoria now has won three games this season, all against Vancouver with a pattern of tight checking and fast breaks.

The Shamrocks blocked out Vancouver defenders on offence with precision-like effectiveness, leaving a man open most of the time. Victoria capitalized on the situations and left the short-handed Carlings gasping for breath.

BIG HELP

Veteran Reg Foster scored three goals for the second straight game for the Shamrocks. Foster, 30, also helped out on defence with two crushing checks on John Cervi of Vancouver in the opening quarter that set the tone of the game for the Shamrocks.

Tom Collett also scored three goals for Victoria, breaking a scoreless drought. Bill Munroe added two goals to take over the club leadership with 10.

Goalkeeper Skip Chapman played another solid game for the Rocks, blocking 28 shots. Chapman was particularly effective in the second and third quarter when Victoria held Vancouver scoreless.

QUICK TRIO

Trailing 2-1 late in the first quarter, the Shamrocks scored three times in 58 seconds to take control of the game.

Munroe tied the score at 12-12 with a blazing shot off Neumann's stick. Then at 13-12, Collett scored his first goal of the season with a 25-foot overhead shot to the top corner. Just eight seconds later, Liebeck broke from the faceoff and drove a hard shot into the net between Neumann's legs.

ONLY GOAL

The Shamrocks scored the only goal of the second quarter and fired three more unanswered markers in the third quarter for an 8-2 lead. The teams split six goals in the final 25 minutes.

Coach Jim McNeill of the Rocks dressed starters Tom Black and Ron Zilkke. Black played an outstanding game on defence.

A Dry Year for Daddy

MARTINSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Donald Parson, 50, father of 14 children, has a judge's permission to get drunk—on one condition.

Suspending a six-month prison sentence for public intoxication, Judge Nobel Littell announced Tuesday: "If Parson stays sober for a year, I'll let him go out and get drunk."

The judge ordered all tavern owners here to refuse to serve Parson for 12 months, or face charges of contempt of court.

Should Notice of Penalty Be Given Out in Writing?

Is a notice a notice if it isn't written?

Magistrate William Ostler adjourned an impaired driving trial in city police court Wednesday to ponder this problem raised by defence counsel Dermot Owen-Flood.

Gordon A. Bolley, 876 Tolmie, had earlier been found guilty of impaired driving, and the prosecution was attempting to secure a greater penalty on the grounds that it was a second conviction.

Must Be Informed

The law requires that when the prosecution plans to seek a greater penalty, the defendant must be so informed before he makes his initial plea.

The warning was read out to Bolley.

But Mr. Owen-Flood, quoting various legal books, contended that such notice should be in writing.

"That section has been there for so long, but it's never been noticed before," commented Magistrate Ostler. "Mr. Owen-Flood has a happy faculty for finding these points."

He adjourned the matter for judgment until June 4.

Gerald Harvey, 16, of 46 South Turner, was sentenced to one year definite and six months indefinite in the young offenders' unit in Oakalla after he was found guilty of indecent assault. He had been raised from juvenile court.

He was also given a concurrent sentence of eight months definite and four months indefinite on a charge of theft under $50 to which he pleaded guilty.

The indecent assault charge arose from an incident during a party Nov. 14.

Had to Jump

Prosecution evidence indicated that a 15-year-old girl was forced to climb out a window and jump to the ground to escape his attentions.

Another youth, who was 15 at the time of the incident, had a similar charge dismissed because of conflicting evidence. The theft charge against Harvey arose after a sweater was stolen from the T. Eaton Co.

Alisa Osmanovic, 2657 Quadra, was sentenced to 21 days in jail after he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

The offence occurred at 6 a.m. May 23 when Osmanovic was observed driving on the wrong side of Douglas.

It was his second conviction on the charge.

Edward Doroboy, now of Spokane but formerly of 1960 Fort Street, was fined $150 after he was found guilty of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Court was told his car hit another on Pandora just west of Belmont on April 8, but he did not stop for about four blocks.

"I didn't think there was any damage," Doroboy testified.

Report Late

The driver of the other car said the crash was minor enough that he didn't think his own vehicle was involved.

Esquimalt Officer Germany-Bound

Group Capt. H. W. Lupton, 45, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Lupton, 1111 Esquimalt, has been transferred to Germany. Senior air staff officer at RCAF Air Transport Command in Trenton, Ont., since 1961, he will leave for Ramstein in late July to take up a senior staff appointment with the 4th Allied Tactical Air Force.

Doroboy turned in an accident report the next morning, but Magistrate Ostler said that immediately upon discovery of the damage he should have returned to the scene or phoned the police.

Nikolai Wakaryk, 3812 Rowland, was fined $300 for impaired driving despite the fact that he was not at the wheel of his car.

Wakaryk was teaching his wife to drive when she was involved in an accident at Glenford and McKenzie on Tuesday.

He was thus judged to be in "care and control" of the car—and, since his blood alcohol reading was .16, he was judged to be impaired.

"It was obviously a case of the blind leading the blind," commented Magistrate Ostler.

James Boyd, 4147 Oakridge, was put on a $250 bond for six months after he was found guilty of loitering at night between the hours of midnight and 3 a.m. outside a residence at 4119 Carey.

In Colwood court, Donald Wayne Volden, HMCS Grills, pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and was fined $100.

RCMP said he was involved in a collision at Harewood May 8.

Hospitals Booming

VANCOUVER (CP)—Forty-four major hospital projects worth $100,000,000 are planned or under construction in B.C., Health Minister Martin says.

The projects will provide B.C. with about 6,000 new beds and include a $2,000,000 hospital for retarded children at Saanich and a $5,500,000 intensive treatment hospital for mental patients on Vancouver Island.

'No Bank for Bennett'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Revenue Minister E. J. Benson said Tuesday that Premier Bennett has no chance of getting into banking.

In an interview Mr. Benson said the premier should put his money into universities and let Ottawa look after the banks.

He said the federal government has no objection to a bank with its head office in British Columbia but is not in favor of seeing the provincial government getting involved because banking is a federal matter under the British North America Act.

"One could guess that almost every business in B.C. would have to deal with a provincial bank," he said.

Asked if he meant such business would be forced into dealing with a provincial bank, he replied that provincial authorities—such as school boards—would find it necessary to deal with the bank.

Private business would likely follow because of provincial loyalty.

"The result would be that the federal government would lose control of fiscal policy, which is constitutionally a federal matter," he said.

"Because of this the provinces are not to be allowed to participate in banking."

In Ottawa, the controversial bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia got past second reading in the Senate and now heads for committee study, where it died last session.

Premier Meets Royal Couple

TOKYO (Reuters)—Premier Bennett of British Columbia, accompanied by five provincial ministers, was received Wednesday by Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko at their palace.

The British Columbians flew into Tokyo Monday on an 11-day economic mission to seek expanded trade and economic relations with Japan.

Later they inspected a camera company and three electric appliance makers.

Today they will meet Japan's trade minister, Yoshio Sakurai, and go to western Japanese industrial cities for a four-day inspection trip. They will return home early next month.

Portage Inlet Sets Up Howl Over Sewage

By IAN SMITH

Portage Inlet residents set up a howl this week over the latest proposal to dump treated sewage into the waters near their homes.

Comments ranged from "a backward step" to "a downright disgrace" in the wake of an application by the provincial government to discharge 30,000 gallons of effluent per day into Colquitz Creek, which drains into the Gorge.

The application, which was advertised in the Colonist over the weekend, follows a similar application by Saanich to discharge 35,000 gallons per day into the area's waters.

Algae Increasing

"Nobody likes to feel they are swimming in sewage, no matter how safe it may be—and I don't know how safe it is."

R. B. Faulk, 1195 Trans-Canada Highway, feels that it could "ruin the area. The algae has been increasing each year, and now it's terrible."

"I think at least part of the blame must lie in sewage from both treatment plants and septic tanks."

He says the algae situation has become "twice as bad" this year since the Saanich plant went into operation.

"You used to be able to bring a good-sized boat right up the inlet," he stated. "Now I doubt if you could get past Craigflower bridge; the whole inlet is covered with the stuff."

"If they let them put more sewage in here, I don't know what will happen."

Mr. Faulk said the sewage, despite being treated, facilitates algae growth because of its high nitrogen content.

Residents Not Hopeful

The Pollution Control Board will meet Friday to discuss the applications, and residents are not hopeful.

Said Mrs. Allen Benton, 770 Newberry, "Let's face it, the provincial government needs that treatment plant so they can develop the Colquitz jail property."

"We're being stabbed in the back. Our property values go down and who can we complain to?"

"A few years ago our kids could swim down by Admirals bridge. Now they couldn't."

"If you go down to the creek now, you can smell it."

Mr. Faulk summed it up: "Years ago they had a pollution problem, so they worked to clean it up and they made Portage Inlet good and clear and fine for swimming."

"And now they're going back the other way again."

Historic Train Here in 1967

A working committee will be set up by city council to make plans for the visit of the Confederation Train to Victoria in January, 1967.

The train, packed with Canadians and historical lore, will be exhibited at the Point Ellice yard of the Canadian National Railways Jan. 9 to 15 before a swing across the nation.

Regional

College Here Certain

A regional college is definitely coming for Greater Victoria, perhaps as early as 14 months from now.

That is the opinion of adult education official Lloyd Clarkson.

He said development of a Grade 12 and technical training college may be about 2½ years away, but it could be as close as 14 months.

"It depends on whether a suitable building, already constructed and ready for occupancy can be obtained."

Mr. Clarkson said such a college would be cheaper for the student than first year at the University of Victoria.

He also said many people take Grade 12 to go on to other technical training, rather than to get a university degree.

Officials of Victoria, Saanich and Sooke school districts will meet June 3 to discuss a regional college.

Big Area Black As Pole Sheared

Power was knocked out in Langford Wednesday night when a car went out of control at 940 Goldstream and sheared off a power pole.

Colwood RCMP said the driver, Edward A. Maillet, 1818 Island Highway, was uninjured.

The crash dropped the pole and wires containing 12,000 volts across the road, holding up traffic until police were able to set up a road block and route cars around the 900 block.

The emergency siren at Langford volunteer fire department was knocked out but the siren at No. 2 station at Glen Lake was used to dispatch volunteers to the accident scene.

REPAIRS

B.C. Hydro emergency crews were called at 8:01 p.m. Power was restored to some of the area by 9:13 and to all but four houses and Langford Building Supply by 10:02. All power was restored by 10:30 p.m.

Totally blacked out by the power cut were Langford, Colwood, the Highlands, Munn's Road, Florence Lake and Theis Lake.

Full of Humor

Pearson Film 'Human'

By PATRICK O'NEILL

The Labor Minister is describing latest moves in a shipping crisis. He stops in mid-sentence. The prime minister is engrossed in a World Series baseball game on a nearby television set. "Sorry," says Mr. Pearson.

This is one of the incidents in a day in the life of Prime Minister Pearson, recorded in the documentary "Mr. Pearson," the most striking film yet made of a head-of-state while engaged in the business of his office.

The controversial film was shown by Victoria and Oak Bay Liberal associations at War Amps Hall in Oak Bay Wednesday.

The film was commissioned by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, then scrapped because it was "not CBC standard."

Perhaps it wasn't. The film lived up to a description by veteran Parliament Hill reporter Charles Lynch as "one of the finest documentaries ever put on film."

It showed neither a flattering nor contemptuous picture of the prime minister.

The portrait was human, not political.

The film was also full of the kind of humor that reflects life under pressure.

There was the crack humor guard, waiting to meet Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, proudly marching out of step.

There was the frantic attempt of the prime minister's appointments secretary to get Mr. Pearson to agree to change to formal wear to meet the Ethiopian visitor.

There was the slip of the tongue by the prime minister, suggesting a "deal" with the Creditistes, which he quickly changed first to "arrangement" then to "compromise."

The film's photography and sound, taking into consideration the unrehearsed situation in which it was made, were amazing.

The film could alienate only those Pearson supporters who still believe in fairy princesses and enchanted castles in the clouds.

Perhaps the measure of the documentary is this: It is impossible to imagine it being made about the chief of state of Russia or the United States, or almost any other country in the world.

It is a tribute to Canadians that they have the courage to make a film like this about their head of state, but a pity they don't have the guts to show it.

Five to 10 Per Cent

Car Insurance Going Up Again

Victoria area drivers face an increase of from five to 10 per cent in car insurance rates.

That was the indication from the Canadian Underwriters' Association at its annual meeting in Montebello, Que.

An insurance company spokesman here said no official announcement of the increase has yet reached Victoria.

ACCIDENT RATIO

"We must assume that the increase in the accident ratio in the first four months has made the increase in rates necessary," said A. J. F. Roberts, executive vice-president of Ker and Stephenson Ltd.

Victoria car insurance rates are still the lowest of any city of comparable size in Canada with the exception of Brandon, Man., he said.

He had no idea when the increase would take place, he said, but he doubted it would be before July 1.

Insurance rates were boosted by up to 25 per cent Jan. 1 for motorists using their cars to get to and from work.

PROPERTY DAMAGE

In a statement released at the annual meeting the organization representing 107 insurance companies said the premium rate for passenger cars in British Columbia, Alberta and Ontario will be increased by five per cent in the bodily injury and property damage categories.

Fire, theft and physical damage insurance rates for cars will increase 10 per cent in all but the Atlantic provinces, the association said.

Frustrated Marcher Back Across Border

Frustrated peace marcher Eric Robinson was back in the United States today after spending the weekend in the lockup instead of on the road. (See also Page 12.)

The San Francisco resident, who had entered Canada illegally a week ago in an attempt to participate in the protest march to Comox, was deported Wednesday.

He was taken from the cells of the city jail shortly after noon and escorted to Blaine, Wash.

Thatch Museum

Ancient Orient In Baronial Hall

By PATRICK O'NEILL

Stepping out of a warm Saanich afternoon, I found myself in a 16th century baronial hall, face to face with the Ming dynasty.

The Thatch museum, donated to University of Victoria by John Maltwood and his late wife Katherine, Emma Maltwood, is a world apart. It will be opened by the university June 7.

Rusted in the past, there is nothing to distract the sight-seer who gazes around on the work of past artists.

Even Mrs. Maltwood's sculpture takes its theme and spirit from the history of man.

The ancient work of Chinese and Persian artists rests on 16th century English tables, and behind the glass doors of old English cupboards.

The public will see a canopy bed of the 1680s, a Chinese ivory paint-brush holder, and Chinese cloud homes representing night and day.

The big house was built in 16th century style, and was the home of the Maltwoods for many years.

After I stepped out the door, the sunlight was a harsh modern beacon cutting through dreams of past elegant ages.

Churchill Gift

The University of Victoria's McPherson Library is to receive a gift of $50 to purchase recordings of Sir Winston Churchill's speeches. The gift is being made by the Victoria council of the Beta Sigma Phi society.

'Save Visitors Bureau'

Greater Victoria businessmen were challenged Wednesday to put up one "good summer day's gate receipts a year" to keep the Victoria Visitors' Bureau alive.

"You can be very sure that any powers granted by this bylaw will be used with a great deal of discretion. I have a feeling that in any matter of importance we will be returning for committee approval."

The bureau provided other businessmen do the same.

The bureau's executive committee Tuesday moved to seek approval to drop the $80,000-a-year operation in city council's lap because businessmen do not support it with adequate donations.

He named the Undersea Garden, Royal London Wax Museum, Anne Hathaway's Cottage, Wooded Wonderland, Fable Cottage and other tourist-dollar supported enterprises in the outfits that benefit from the work of the bureau. Without the bureau there wouldn't be any business at all for any of us," said Mr. Carlow.

"I think a good summer day's take should be given by each of his challenge."

Discussing last minute details for the spring tea to be held in the Hudson's Bay Douglas Room on Friday by Victoria Council of Women are Mrs. D. C. F. McArthur, general convener; Mrs. Bert Noel, president; Mrs. E. L. Johns, in charge of apron stall and decorations, and Mrs. T. B. Lowe, home bake stall. Special feature of the afternoon will be a demonstration of packing a suitcase by Miss Carol Lane of the Carol Lane Safety Awards. The demonstration will start at 1:30 p.m., followed by tea from 2:15 to 4 p.m.

Pre-Wedding Parties Fete Carol Bickford

Miss Carol Bickford whose marriage takes place this Saturday afternoon, has been widely feted at many parties.

Cousin of the bride-elect, Mrs. K. Mollet entertained at a surprise shower at her home on West Saanich Road. Rose ribbon corsages were presented to Miss Bickford: her mother, Mrs. Morley Bickford and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Philip Crampton.

"Good wishes" was inscribed on the shower cake which centred the refreshment table. Servitors were Mrs. H. Bickford, Mrs. S. Bickford and Mrs. B. Bickford.

Pink and white ribbons decorated the basket which held gifts for Miss Bickford at a shower given by Mrs. T. Foster at her home on Oswego Street. Co-hostesses were her mother, Mrs. F. Barnard and Mrs. W. T. Crampton.

A corsage of pink carnations was presented to the guest of honor. Her mother, Mrs. Bickford and Mrs. Crampton, mother of the groom-elect received corsages of baby gladioli. The tea table was centred with a shower cake.

Another shower was given for the bride-elect at the home of her aunt, Mrs. G. Michell on Island View Road. Co-hostesses were Mrs. R. Larson, Mrs. V. Michell and Mrs. D. Johnston.

A container decorated in pink and white held the gifts. Miss Bickford was presented with a corsage of white carnations, and her mother, Mrs. Bickford, and the groom-elect's mother received corsages of pink carnations.

Co-workers of the bride-elect from the Royal Trust Company entertained at a surprise shower at the home of Miss Maureen Catterall on Florence Street.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Of all the silly squabbles in your column the one about the wife who undressed in the closet takes the cake. So far as I could tell the woman didn't say she slept in the closet, did she? All she did was undress there. It was unfair of you to say that she was off her rocker.

Do you feel, Ann Landers, that it is a wife's duty to put on a nightgown for her husband? Do you honestly believe a man would not think about sex unless he was treated to some visual stimulation? This is ridiculous. Any male who is that dead sexually would not bat an eye at the sight of a woman disrobing.

A man who interested in romance will let a woman know. If he is tired and not interested he deserves to be left alone. To deliberately arouse a husband who has fallen into bed exhausted after a hard day's work is inconsiderate—and it could cause him to feel inadequate.

Speaking for myself, I wouldn't dream of undressing in the closet. I go into the bathroom.

—FROM GEORGIA

Dear Georgia: If you haven't tried it, Honey, don't knock it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a girl who probably should have been a boy. I am large and muscular, but not fat. The problem is that I am much better at sports than any of the fellows I go with and it is embarrassing. I think it is also hurting me socially.

I can cream any fellow I know on the tennis court. I love to play tennis but not too many fellows will play against me. I started to play golf with my dad when I was seven. I won a local tournament last year and the person I beat used to be a special boy friend. He doesn't call me any more.

I once believed that excelling in sports would make me more popular but it is doing just the opposite. The uncoordinated girls who don't know a putter from a masher do just fine sitting on the sidelines.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

MONTREAL, May 27th — How much money do you need . . . to get that new car? Next question — how to get it without depleting your savings? That's where THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA can help you. Their Scotia Plan Car Loan is one of the most practical ways I know to buy or refinance a car. The cost of the loan is low and it's life-insured. And you get wonderfully speedy service from the Scotiabank people. So why not talk over your money problem, whatever it is, with the people at your nearest Scotiabank? They're ready and able to help—even if you don't have an account there!

IT'S TIME TO CUT DOWN ON CALORIES if your bathing suit feels as snug as mine after this winter. It's so easy, too, with SUCARYL, Abbott's no-calorie sweetener. With Sucaryl, you can go on a sweet spree, calorie free: iced drinks, desserts, sauces, dressing! So convenient, too: keep a bottle of liquid Sucaryl in the kitchen for cooking and baking, a shaker of granulated Sucaryl on the table, and carry Sucaryl tablets with you in a handy Thin-Pak dispenser. Get your dispenser free, along with a wonderful low-calorie recipe book. Write to Sucaryl, Dept. BB, P.O. Box 6150, Montreal, P.Q.

ONE OF THE MOST GRATIFYING EXPERIENCES in writing this column is the letters I receive about the products I recommend . . . and I receive a vast number of wonderful letters about TEMPLETON'S T-R-C's, all from men and women who have suffered from neuritic, arthritic or rheumatic pain. They tell me that T-R-C's have given them quickly the comforting relief for which they longed. If you, too, are a sufferer do try T-R-C's internally and applying Templeton's FLAME-cream Liniment externally. Ask for FLAME-cream Liniment in the handy roll-on applicator bottle at your favorite drug counter.

THOUSANDS HAVE . . . HAVE YOU? Have you joined the swing to "MIRACLE" INSTANTIZED FLOUR as so many delighted homemakers have? The reason for the growing popularity is simply this: Miracle Flour is positively mess-free . . . it pours just like salt, doesn't dust all over the place as regular flour does. And, as the name suggests, it blends instantly with other dry ingredients. You can now throw away your sifter. How well does it bake, you ask. Answer: it bakes as fine as the finest flour can — perfectly. Give new Miracle Flour a try — join the swing to easy, mess-free homebaking!

A REAL "BUY" always excites me. Like the CN Red, White and Blue bargain fares. They make me want to go places. Go with the whole family on CN's Red, White and Blue travel plan — any place in Canada — for so little! And complimentary meals with sleeping or parlor car reservations. Ideal for family travel, because you save even more when you share sleeping accommodations. Pick up a handy purse-size calendar from any Canadian National Passenger Sales Office. You'll like the low, low Red Bargain Fares. There are savings from White Economy and Blue Standard day fares too. Just go CN. You'll see!

Attending Vancouver Meeting

Delegates from across Canada are in Vancouver, for the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Hospital Auxiliaries, which started Wednesday at the Hotel Vancouver.

Mrs. E. P. Richardson of Calgary, Alberta, president of the association, is presiding at all sessions for the three-day meeting.

Attending from this province are Mrs. N. T. Bennett, Nanaimo, president of the B.C. Hospital Auxiliaries; Mrs. W. H. Patterson, Prince George, provincial treasurer; and Mrs. Wallace Johnston, Vancouver, 1st vice-president.

Dr. J. E. Boulding, Nanaimo, will speak on Modern Practice of Psychiatry in an acute general hospital. A panel will cover the local auxiliary on provincial relationship.

Sessions will cover reports of the 150,000 volunteers in Canada, organized in some 600 women's hospital auxiliaries, plus 300 male volunteers and over 100 Candy Stripe Auxiliaries.

To lighten the business sessions, a tour of the city and the North Shore, followed by a tea at "Hycroft" has been arranged.

Agnes Keith To Speak

The Lady Laurier Club of Oak Bay will hold its regular meeting and luncheon at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Friday, May 28 at 12:30 p.m.

They will have as a speaker the author, Mrs. Agnes Newton Keith, who will speak on "Women in Libya Today."

Mrs. Keith is author of "Land Below the Wind" and "Three Came Home."

Sketch Club Exhibition

Reeve Hugh A. Curtis of Saanich will open the annual exhibition of Victoria Sketch Club at 3 p.m., June 1, in Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Company.

The exhibition will run three days until Thursday, June 3. Tea will be served during the show.

Senior naval officials admit the new research ship Endeavour rolled badly in heavy seas during recent trials, but said she behaved exactly as designers claimed she would in moderate seas.

The $4,500,000 Esquimault-based vessel, launched last September, has been restricted to protected waters until problems with its stabilizing equipment are solved.

Naval officials claim the anti-rolling device is not designed to stabilize in a heavy sea, and point out even in the most expensive passenger ships the roll is only minimized in heavy seas, and not prevented entirely.

WEST COAST TEST
According to the navy, the Endeavour's anti-rolling device is designed to work at its best in a moderate sea.

Endeavour's stabilizing problem was discovered when the ship was tested in heavy seas off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Crew members reported that at times she rolled so badly there were fears she would founder.

NEW DESIGN
The Endeavour, entirely new in design, is fitted with stabil-izers which depend on the transfer of large tonnages of oil to oppose the normal roll of the ship. If the system does not work properly it adds to the roll rather than controlling the motion.

"It has to be remembered that Endeavour is entirely new in conception and design," the spokesman said. "It is quite likely that with so many radical differences she doesn't handle like a normal ship. We feel sure that once we have given careful study to her handling most of the problems will be solved.

READY SOON
"All we have to do is make the necessary adjustments and she will be ready to go out again."

The Endeavour was handed over to the navy March 9.

No Civic Takeover for Rink

By A. H. MURPHY

Victoria has abandoned a proposal to add the curling club to civic recreational facilities, and says the possibility of meeting an annual deficit is responsible.

Conversations have been in progress between officials of the curling club and city hall for some months with the possible acquisition of the building as the eventual objective.

However, on the recommendation of City Manager Dennis Young, the legislative and lands committee will urge city council to drop negotiations.

WHAT PLANS?

The question was opened when the club officers asked for some indication of the city's plans in view of the fact that the lease on the city-owned property, expires in 1970.

It was indicated at the meeting Wednesday that city council will be willing to sit down with club officials in a year or two and work out terms for an extension of the lease.

Mr. Young said that independent surveys indicated that the building and plant are in sound condition.

However, a projection of operating costs indicates that, if the city acquired the building and leased it back to the club for the six-month curling season, the building.

The city was afraid then such a development would not fit in with long-range plans for development of the whole area for multiple recreation use.

Greasy Man Stuff Offensive Weapon

SOUTHEND, England (UPI)—Anthony Hyde, 20, was fined £20 Wednesday for carrying an offensive weapon—a peaked cap covered with lumps of metal and lined with chain. He told the court the hat was “to keep my long hair clean.”

Services Today

Churches Mark Ascension Day

By IAN ARROL
(Church Editor)

Ascension Day will be marked today by five services at Christ Church Cathedral and six masses at St. Andrew's Cathedral.

The main observance at Christ Church will be an 8 a.m. sung eucharist and sermon. The sermon will be delivered by Canon G. H. Greenhalgh of Nainimo.

HOLY COMMUNION

Other celebrations at Christ Church will be 7:15 a.m. Holy Communion, 9 a.m. matins, 12:15 p.m. Holy Communion and 5:15 p.m. evensong.
The St. Andrew's Cathedral

The St. Andrew's Cathedral

Masses for Ascension Day will be at 6:30 a.m., 8 a.m., 9:30 a.m., 12:10 p.m., 5:15 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Other services for the day will be held at many Anglican and Roman Catholic churches.

COMBINED SERVICE

One of these is the combined service of evening for the Saanich deanery of the Anglican Church at 8 p.m. in St. Michael and All Angels Church, Royal Oak. Preacher will be Ven. E. H. Maddocks.

At 10:30 a.m. Archbishop Harold Sexton will conduct an ordination service at St. Luke's Anglican Church, Cedar Hill Cross Road. Preacher will be Dr. N. S. Noel of St. George-the-Martyr, Cadboro Bay.

Victorian Saves Man from Lake

A Victoria man was credited with saving the life of a man when four others died as a car in which he was riding plunged into Burns Lake Monday.

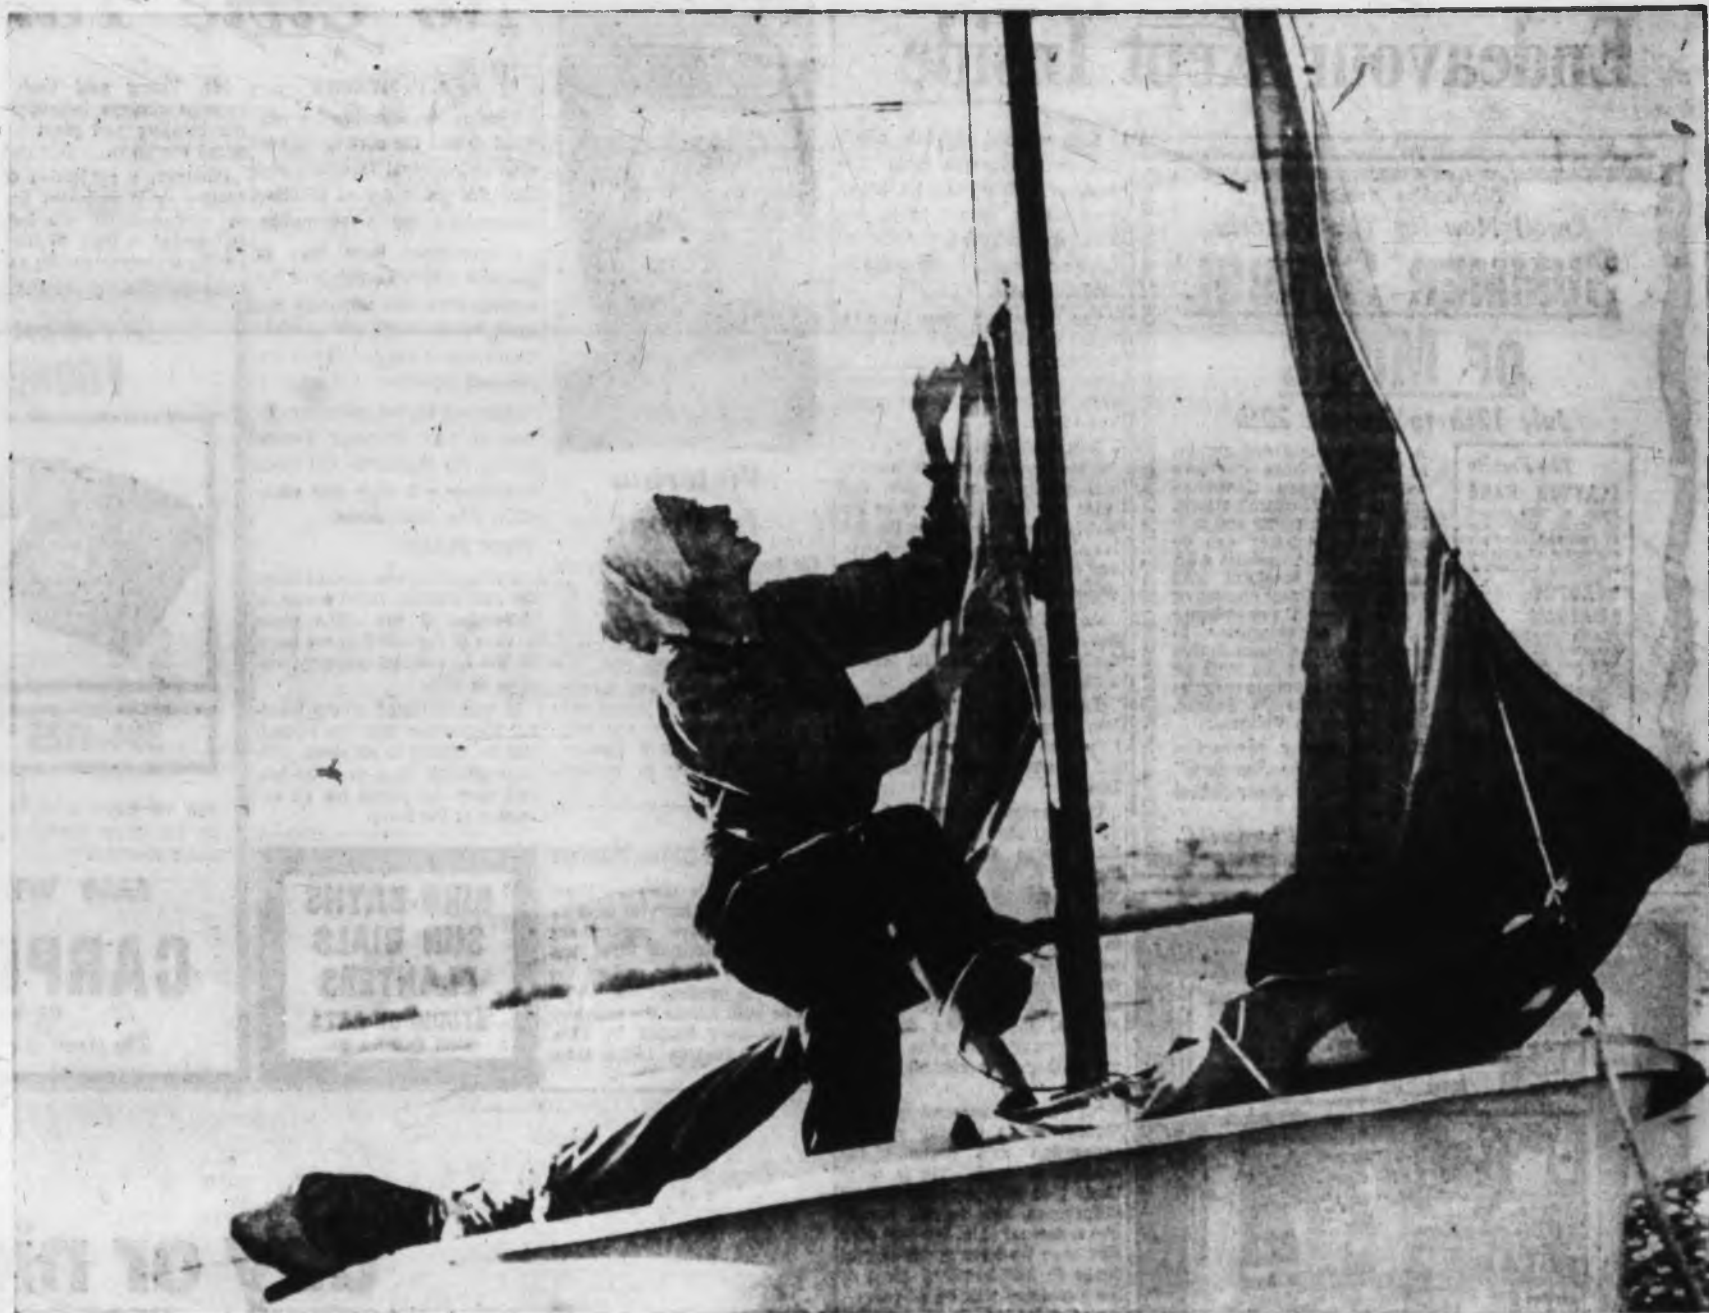

Larry Russell, 23, of 879 St. Patrick, crawled out of the submerged car through a broken windshield and pulled Richard Ferguson, 22, of Ashcroft, to safety through a door.

He then made five dives in an attempt to save the other four occupants of the car.

Drowned in the crash were Pierre Ouelette, 25, of Fort Kent, Alta.; William McCartney, 27, of Powell River; Violet Starrett, 19, of Topley Landing, and Mary Torn, 48, of Smithers.

Russia Freeing 66 Japanese

TOKYO (Reuters) — Russia has told Japan it will shortly release all the Japanese fishermen still held on charges of violating Soviet waters in the North Pacific. According to the agriculture ministry, 86 fishermen are still held by the Russians. Thirty-three others were released last week.

Mimi

They All Love Merry Widow

Everybody loves the merry widow. They love her enough to marry her.

Mimi Robertson, who starred in the Merry Widow in the recent production at the McPherson Playhouse has received 37 proposals of marriage.

Unfortunately for Victoria's lovesick bachelors, Mimi is already married and, to prove it, she appears with her husband

Alan in today's noon concert at the playhouse.

In an attempt to shake off the merry widow image and over-anxious fans, Mimi will completely depart from the musical comedy style.

She will strum a guitar and sing folk songs.

On the same program is a piano team, made up of Kenneth Bertram and Norman Abbott.

Sings Here Soon

Strumming her way into Victoria this weekend will be Vancouver entertainer Kris Robinson. Singer, whose voice has been compared with that of folk song star Joan Baez, will appear at The Secret coffeehouse Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

BBC Pities CBC

LONDON (CP) — Sir Hugh Greene, director-general of the BBC and the centre of a storm about wastage and overstaffing in the corporation, is reported to have stated the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is an "unhappy organization."

The Daily Mirror, long a critic of the BBC's efficiency, prints the text of a speech Sir Hugh is reported to have made to 200 top BBC executives last week at a private meeting.

WORK HARDER

In the course of the speech, the newspaper says, the director-general stated there has been a large increase in BBC staff—an extra 7,000 since 1959—and demanded less wastage and more work from his department. The BBC employs more than 19,000 persons.

NO ADVERTISING

But Sir Hugh is reported to have ruled out any suggestion that the BBC will solve its financial difficulties by accepting a limited amount of advertising. He is quoted as saying:

"I think that anybody who knows the history of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation must be aware of the fact that acceptance of advertising by a public service is in fact the first step towards the destruction of that public corporation's independence."

LOST FEE

"Look at our unfortunate colleagues at the CBC. They have lost their licence fee. They exist on a combination of advertising and government grant."

"They are faced with parliamentary committees of inquiry every year and sometimes more than once a year."

"They do good work in these circumstances, certainly, but I think it is an unhappy organization working in impossible circumstances and that is a road on which the BBC is not going to set one foot."

Old Store Leased For Actors

The old Safeway building on Douglas has been leased by Festival Theatre Society for building of sets to be used in the summer program at McPherson Playhouse.

Society administrator Allan Purdy said the building also will be used as construction space and rehearsal room for Show Parade 1965.

The large area will allow simultaneous preparation of the four plays on the program.

CJOR Owner Gives Up Majority and Presidency

VANCOUVER (CP) — Radio station CJOR Wednesday announced a change in its executive.

Mrs. Marie Chandler, who succeeded her late husband as owner of the station, has given up both majority interest and the presidency.

Allan Williams, a Vancouver lawyer, has taken over the presidency of the company that has no guarantee that it will be permitted to broadcast past Oct. 31 of this year.

FIVE PER CENT

Mrs. Chandler announced that she has transferred five per cent of her share to Mr. Williams. She now is left with 49 per cent of the outstanding shares.

Alex Young, recently-hired news director, has been named to the board of directors and been appointed secretary of the board. Mrs. Chandler continues on the board.

OCTOBER DEADLINE

All share transfers are subject to the approval of the Board of Broadcast Governors. The BBG last month recommended to the department of transport that the station be permitted to operate under its present management only until Oct. 31.

It said that it had no confidence that the station could exercise sufficient supervision and direction to ensure operation in the public interest under the management of Mrs. Chandler.

It suggested that the board of transport accept applications from other persons to operate a station on 600 kilocycles, the frequency used by CJOR.

The BBG recommendation was made after strong objections were voiced at hearings here about the station's on-air programs.

Boys' Band Gets Flat Rejection

If members of the Victoria Boys' Band want to play at the Portland Rose Festival in June they will have to do so without help from the city.

A letter to city council from the band pointed out that the boys' record was good in the past and they wanted to bring another trophy back to Victoria. They have been provided with new uniforms.

The band was made up of 22 boys from Victoria, 12 from Saanich and five from Esquimalt.

City refused the request on the grounds there are boys in the band from the whole area, other municipalities might be expected to contribute.

The intermunicipal committee earlier refused the band's request for assistance.

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Canada needs more professional drama critics, adjudicator Guy Beaulne of Quebec City said in an interview here Wednesday at the Dominion Drama Festival.

Mr. Beaulne, director of theatre for the province of Quebec and a former drama critic himself, said something should be done to stimulate more Canadians to enter the field of drama criticism.

"Canada has been lagging behind in this field for many years. We really do not have enough qualified critics."

He said the major qualifications for a critic were "love of theatre and taste."

Sky-Divers Ignoring Safety Rules in U.K.

By JIM CONWAY

LONDON (CP) — Sky-divers say that parachuting, as sport, is perfectly safe as long as you follow the rules.

The trouble is that in Britain an increasing number of jumpers are going it alone.

The British Parachute Association, an unofficial organization that looks after parachuting in general, is finding it difficult to enforce its rules.

The association trains sky-divers and tries to keep the sport safe by providing a code of conduct for the 1,000 odd service and civilian jumpers.

Membership entitles a person to a provisional permit from the aviation ministry, allowing the prospective parachutist to train and practice under the supervision of one of the 70 BPA instructors.

After a probationary period of 25 good jumps a full permit signed by the instructor allows the sky-diver to jump unsupervised.

Parachuting is flourishing in Britain. There are nine clubs. About half the sky-divers are civilians, however, and this is where the difficulty lies.

FOUR DIED

Proof of the decline in safety precautions, association officials say, is the increase in fatalities in the last few years. Four non-service sky-divers have died in the last year and the accidents have been attributed to lack of discipline among civilians. In contrast, only one service jumper has been killed in 10 years.

The BPA feels it cannot properly control parachuting without official help. It wants government recognition and an annual grant so that it can appoint a larger staff and regular inspectors to tour clubs and airfields.

TRAINING CENTRE

It also advocates tightening legislation covering safety regulations. And the ultimate aim is establishment of a national training and sport centre for sky-diving.

Sir Geoffrey Nicholson, an MP and a BPA official, has sounded out Sports Minister Denis Howell and approaches have been made to the aviation ministry. Officials are confident some action will be taken although they're not sure the association will get all it wants.

Locomotive Stares Back At Passing Pedestrians

By GARY OAKES

It's enough to make a man swear off.

Honest to Casey Jones, the front end of a real, live locomotive is staring out the window of 1010 Government Street.

It's the Royal Train Dunrobin, star of Imperial Pageants, a new city museum, and it could only happen in Victoria.

The train-in-the-window caper is the brainchild of Harold Foster, a 43-year-old Victorian of "independent means."

Last October Mr. Foster read that the Dunrobin, a Scottish duke's train which once carried European royalty, was being sold.

On an impulse he phoned long distance to the train's owner and promptly bought it.

That phone call was worth "slightly less than $100,000," by the time the freight cost and duty was added to the initial (and undisclosed) price of the train.

So on April 30 a ship arrived at Ogden Point carrying his train.

The 60-ton locomotive and parlor car were lowered by crane onto a flat-bed truck and whisked off to Government Street. Tracks were laid right on to the street and Dunrobin was rolled into her new home.

Mr. Foster's new museum opened Friday, after several days of cleaning and polishing.

Why did he do it? "It was strictly one of those things you do on the spur of the moment," he replied.

"I turned to my wife and said, 'I think I'll buy a Royal Train' and she said, 'Why don't you?'"

"This is me," he adds. "I do these things and worry about it after."

Dunrobin, classed as an 0-4-4 in railway terminology, has four driving wheels and four trailing wheels, but no front guiding wheels.

It was built at Glasgow in 1865 for the very wealthy and influential Fourth Duke of Sutherland, who named it after his ancestral home, Dunrobin Castle near Inverness.

A smaller train was built by the duke's father, along with 19 miles of his own track. He sold both engines to the Highland Railway Co. but retained use of the track.

The duke would pick up his guests at the main railway station and shuttle them off to the castle, which was surrounded by some of the best stag-hunting, salmon-fishing and grouse-shooting land in the British Isles.

Dunrobin's cab was specially constructed to permit several people to ride inside, and many heads of state became engineers for short hauls.

Among the more famous were King Edward VII, Princess Louise Margaret, George V, Neville Chamberlain, Winston Churchill and Spain's King Alfonso.

In the parlor car the less venturesome guests would eat, drink and discuss business, and

Kill Ump, He Cried—and Did

HOUSTON — Ernest Nathaniel Coleman, 31, umpire at a sandlot baseball game, was shot four times and killed between innings, Wednesday night.

Spectator Willie Harris, 39, was charged with murder. Coleman's brother Ram, 30, who said Harris "bugged" the umpire all night, was charged with assault after a post-shooting fight in which Harris suffered facial and jaw fractures.

NEW YORK — Police Lieut. Thomas Gilligan, whose fatal shooting of a Negro youth touched off riots in Harlem last summer, filed $5,000,000 worth of libel suits against Rev. Martin Luther King and other Negro civil rights leaders.

MOSCOW — Josef Stalin was a sick man as far back as 1940 and should have resigned at that time, the wartime commander of the Soviet navy said. Adm. Nikolai Kuznetsov, now retired, said that at the end of the war Stalin promised to retire "within two or three years" but clung to his power until his death in 1953.

Friar, Ex-Nun...

Rackets On Run In Italy

ROME (UPI) — Italian police are grappling with a rash of rackets and a government scandal — and a cast of characters ranging from a Capuchin friar and an ex-nun to a Chilean widow known as "Terrible Auntie" who packed a pistol in her purse.

The cases involve smuggling, forgery, fraud and abuse of office.

TONS OF SMOKES

The friar, Father Antonio Corsi, was accused of taking part in a big-time cigarette smuggling operation. He was jailed after police found tons of cigarettes in his monastery.

The ex-nun, Maria Diletta Pagliuca, was accused of buying homes for herself on proceeds collected by a ring of women for a crippled children's home.

FORGERY RING

The "Terrible Auntie," Estadigna Rebeco, 65, was charged with running a forgery ring from her Milan apartment. She was arrested over the weekend when police found printing equipment there.

Police also reported breaking up a black market gang accused of illegally bringing cigarettes in from Switzerland.

PRIVATE GAIN

Pietro Cova, the director-general of the government monopoly on cigarettes in Italy, was implicated with a fellow official on charges of abusing a public office for private gain.

The government also promised to crack down on the coffee black market and to investigate the salt monopoly for irregularities.

The banana monopoly, it was recalled, was exposed last year. It had been rigged with phony auctions.

TORONTO — Art gallery owner Dorothy Cameron was charged with exposing obscene matter to public view as police seized seven pictures from her gallery. One was Lovers No. 1, a semi-abstract which artist Robert Markle of Hamilton says represents sexual love between women.

ROSSLAND — Cominco personnel manager Alison Malcolm Martin, 36, of Trail, wounded by an RCMP constable Tuesday after a blast of buckshot killed a police dog, has been committed to a mental institution.

NEW YORK — Chauffeur Louis Delago, 49, let his party out of his rented limousine, then drove off. His brakes failed and the limousine sped through a Times Square red light, hitting 11 pedestrians and injuring two seriously.

LEOPOLDVILLE — Former Congolese foreign minister Justin Benabaka and 100 armed companions were arrested amid speculation he planned to take over the government while Premier Moise Tshombe is in the Ivory Coast.

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — Nine independent states of former French Africa voted unanimously to accept Premier Moise Tshombe's Congo as a member of their organization.

TORONTO — The Shah of Iran and Empress Farah left for home after their four-day eastern Canadian tour. The last day included a flight for the Shah in a de Havilland Turbo-Beaver and a stop at a race track for three horse races.

OTTAWA — Tax incentives to encourage research into methods to halt and control water and air pollution were urged in the Commons by several MPs, led by Douglas Fisher (NDP-Port Arthur). The government did not reply.

LONDON — Miss Mabel Phillips, 71, who lives on welfare at Sand-

MANCHESTER, Mass. — Joseph Clark Grew, 84, U.S. ambassador to Japan in the period preceding the Pearl Harbor attack, died at his home.

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson said he has approached

Speaker Alan Macnaughton in connection with proposals that he become a permanent Speaker but Mr. Macnaughton is withholding his views until the Commons makes its wishes known.

VANCOUVER — One passenger who will be all arms on a flight to New York today will be accompanied by Dr. Murray Newman, Vancouver aquarium curator. The passenger is a 44-pound, 10-foot octopus which will make the flight encased in a plastic bag chilled by ice and sea water.

VANCOUVER — Material from the collections of Victoria University professors Dr. Ann Suddlemeyer and Robin Skelton will be shown next month in a UBC exhibition honoring the centenary of the birth of Irish poet W. B. Yeats.

CALGARY — The University of Alberta at Calgary gave former principal Dr. Malcolm Taylor, now University of Victoria chief, an honorary degree.

OTTAWA — The winter works program of federal assistance to municipalities will be renewed next winter, Labor Minister MacEachern announced.

AMSTERDAM — Louis Armstrong arrived with his jazz combo for a European tour.

Kill Ump, He Cried—and Did

HOUSTON — Ernest Nathaniel Coleman, 31, umpire at a sandlot semi-pro baseball game, was shot four times and killed between innings Wednesday night.

Spectator Willie Harris, 58, was charged with murder. Coleman's brother Sam, 30, who said Harris "bugged" the umpire all night, was charged with assault after a post-shooting fight in which Harris suffered facial and jaw fractures.

NEW YORK — Police Lt. Thomas Gilligan, whose fatal shooting of a Negro youth lashed off riots in Harlem last summer, filed $5,000,000 worth of libel suits against Rev. Martin Luther King and other Negro civil rights leaders.

MOSCOW — Josef Stalin was a sick man as far back as 1940 and should have resigned at that time, the wartime commander of the Soviet navy said. Adm. Nikolai Kuznetsov, navy retired, said that at the end of the war Stalin promised to retire "within two or three years" but clung to his power until his death in 1953.

Friar, Ex-Nun...

Rackets On Run In Italy

ROME (UPI) — Italian police are grappling with a rash of rackets and a government scandal — and a cast of characters ranging from a Capuchin friar and an ex-nun to a Chilean widow known as "Terrible Aunt" who packed a pistol in her purse.

The cases involve smuggling, forgery, fraud and abuse of office.

TONS OF SMOKE The friar, Father Antonio Corsi, was accused of taking part in a big-time cigarette smuggling operation. He was jailed after police found tons of cigarettes in his monastery.

FORGERY RING The ex-nun, Maria Diletta Tagliuca, was accused of buying homes for herself on proceeds collected by a ring of women for a crippled children's home.

PRIVATE GAIN Pietro Cova, the director-general of the government monopoly on cigarettes in Italy, was implicated with a fellow official on charges of abusing a public office for private gain.

The government also promised to crack down on the coffee black market and to investigate the salt monopoly for irregularities.

The banana monopoly, it was recalled, was exposed last year. It had been rigged with phony auctions.

TORONTO — Art gallery owner Dorothy Cameron was charged with exposing obscene matter to public view as police seized seven pictures from her gallery. One was Lovers No. 1, a semi-abstract which artist Robert Markle of Hamilton says represents sexual love between women.

ROSSLAND — Cominco personnel manager Allison Malcolm Martin, 36, of Trail, wounded by an RCMP constable Tuesday after a blast of buckshot killed a police dog, has been committed to a mental institution.

NEW YORK — Chauffeur Louis Delago, 49, let his party out of his rented limousine, then drove off. His brakes failed and the limousine sped through a Times Square red light, hitting 11 pedestrians and injuring two seriously.

LEOPOLDVILLE — Former Congolese foreign minister Justin Bomboko and 100 armed companions were arrested amid speculation he planned to take over the government while Premier Moise Tshombe is in the Ivory Coast.

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — Nine independent states of former French Africa voted unanimously to accept Premier Moise Tshombe's Congo as a member of their organization.

TORONTO — The Shah of Iran and Empress Farah left for home after their four-day eastern Canadian tour. The last day included a flight for the Shah and a stop at a race track for three horse races.

OTTAWA — Tax incentives to encourage research into methods to halt and control water and air pollution were urged in the Commons by several MPs, led by Douglas Fisher (NDP-Port Arthur). The government did not reply.

LONDON — Miss Mabel Phillips, 71, who lives on welfare at Sand-

By EDWIN ROTH
Special to the Colonist

DUESSELDORF—In his black evening suit with tails, stiff white shirt and white tie, Britain's white-haired Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart looked very tired.

He walked slowly behind Queen Elizabeth through almost 3,000 evening-dressed or uniformed men and women glittering with jewels and decorations at the magnificent baroque Bruehl castle near West Germany's capital, Bonn. But despite his tiredness, his smile seemed to show satisfaction.

"It's very good that this royal state visit is now taking place," he remarked to me while near us the Queen's superb diamonds sparkled in the candlelight. "I say this not only as British foreign secretary, but also as a member of the Labor party. We want the best possible relations with West Germany. This royal state visit helps a lot to get them."

Quite Different

Beside Stewart stood West Germany's rotund Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, happily spreading aromatic smoke from his cigar. With a national election due in September, Queen Elizabeth II of England is worth many votes to him.

"Herr Bundeskanzler," I asked him, "how would you compare this state visit of Queen Elizabeth with the state visits of President de Gaulle in 1962, and President Kennedy in 1963?"

"A queen is something quite different from a president," lectured Professor Erhard.

"Queen Elizabeth cannot be as jovial as President de Gaulle and President Kennedy were here in Germany. She cannot walk into crowds and shake hands like de Gaulle and Kennedy."

Erhard paused, and added diplomatically: "But I think the German people's emotional participation in this visit is greater."

"Why?"

Dearly Love Queen

"Because the Germans are good republicans. And because they are good republicans, they dearly love a queen."

During that reception at Bruehl castle, Michael Stewart knew (but did not tell) exactly how the Labor government was using the Queen's visit in the present fierce diplomatic and "public relations" battle against General de Gaulle, Erhard probably knew it too, because public speeches by visitors on formal state visits are usually known by the host government before they are made.

It was known, of course, that Elizabeth would publicly support the German dream of Germany's reunification by free elections. She exploded her Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson's carefully prepared bombshell against French-German friendship while standing in a bright pink dress beside the Rhine at Koblenz—a few moments before she and her husband Prince Philip boarded the white steamboat Lorelei for a Rhine cruise.

Alliance Recalled

In her speech thanking the prime minister of Rheinland-Palatinate for his official welcome, the Queen dramatically recalled the British-German alliance against France which defeated Napoleon—and German Field Marshal Blucher's crossing of the Rhine on his way to the Battle of Waterloo, where he and his German soldiers "brought the British troops invaluable support at a turning point of history 150 years ago."

Under the British constitution, Queen Elizabeth can say publicly only what her Prime Minister wants her to say.

This historical note, which was not essential and which nobody would have missed, was not put into her speech carelessly. Prime Minister Harold Wilson certainly knew that in West Germany's present political situation—most of which revolves passionately around Charles de Gaulle—the Queen's remark would make a tremendous impact.

Instant Reaction

It did—in both West Germany and France. General de Gaulle and the entire French nation, who venerate Napoleon as their greatest national hero, are extremely touchy about French defeats. But most West Germans are furious about de Gaulle's recent political attitudes, and some West German newspapers reflected this feeling by printing the Queen's words about the British-German alliance against France under big headlines.

In France, the Queen's speech was violently attacked

Apprentice's Dream Comes True

Apprentices with their faces scrubbed and hair slicked down above grimy overalls, beamed at Queen Elizabeth II. She beamed back through the automobile window.

No one moved. It had not been arranged for someone to open the car door. A company policeman started forward, faltered, and fell back.

There was an excruciating moment. Then Juergen Loosen, a 20-year-old apprentice, stepped forward, opened the door and helped the Queen out.

"Your Majesty," he said, "we have made a sundial of steel for you to show what we have learned here."

The apprentices and the girls from the factory offices started creeping closer, and the nearest ranks were soon within arm's reach, enclosing the Queen in a tight circle.

Loosen introduced two fellow apprentices, Clive Anthony Lamey, an Englishman, and James Arthur Ross of Aroostook Junction, New Brunswick.

Ross, a tall, slender lad of 20 years, told the Queen that Tuesday was his last day in the plant. He was to leave for home Wednesday after a year in Germany.

A radio reporter asked Ross what he thought of the Queen. "She was different than I expected," he said. "She was—you know, so natural."

The older workers crowded around Loosen.

"Juergen," cried one, slapping him on the shoulder, "you acted just as if you received a queen every day. You were not at all nervous."

"Maybe not," Loosen replied, "but I have dreamed about this every night for a week."

"You will have an even better dream tonight," someone yelled. "No," said Juergen, "the dream is over."

Big Prizes to City Pair

Victoria students won two major scholarship awards at the University of Victoria, it was announced Wednesday night. As head of the graduating class in the Faculty of Arts and Science, Richard Arthur Gough was awarded the Governor-General's medal. Anne E. Kemp was awarded the Dr.

Maxwell Cameron Medal as head of the graduating class in Faculty of Education, secondary program. Mr. Gough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Gough, 1161 Rockland, earned an 88.3 per cent average. Miss Kemp earned 84 per cent. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kemp, 3886 Granite. See Page 38 for complete graduate list.

Last Hopes Gone

Hope had just run out for group above when picture was taken. At left are wives of two of five miners trapped by blast in Tennessee coal mine Monday. By Wednesday bodies of all five had been recovered. Others in picture are friends of victims. —(AP)

Arrival of Brazilians Releases U.S. Marines

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters)—Withdrawal of men since American 600 U.S. Marines were landed here a flown to the aircraft carrier month ago, a U.S. military Boxer Wednesday in the first spokesman said.

This was roughly equal to the number of Latin American troops who have arrived here to form part of an inter-American force.

McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's adviser on national security affairs, left here earlier in the day to report to the White House.

CALLS ON CAAMANO

One of his last acts was to hold a four-hour interview with Col. Francisco Caamano Dengo, president of the rebel government.

It was his first personal meeting with Caamano since arriving here more than a week ago.

MORE LEAVING

The withdrawal of 1,100 more U.S. troops is expected to follow Wednesday's withdrawal of 600. The move would be timed to coincide with the arrival of 1,250 Brazilian troops.

In Washington, U.S. Secretary of State Rusk said the Dominican crisis should prompt the Organization of American States to establish machinery which would let it deal quickly with "fast-moving events."

STANDBY FORCE

The 20-nation hemispheric organization, he said, should take up again the question of forming some standby force on a continuing basis that would be on prompt call in the event of a crisis.

It also should organize political machinery that would let it make quick decisions, he said.

Socred Sees Takeover Of B.C. Telephone

VANCOUVER (CP)—Takeover of the B.C. Telephone Company has been forecast by Social Credit MLA Bert Price. He told a meeting here that if the company fails to give the public a fair deal in their rates there would be no choice but for the government to step in.

De Gaulle Rejects Waterloo Ceremony

PARIS (UPI)—President de Gaulle, refusing to let bygones be bygones, has vetoed French participation in planned celebrations of the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo.

As a result, plans have been dropped for an allied military parade June 18 on the Waterloo battlefield where Napoleon suffered his final defeat at the hands of the Duke of Wellington and Prussian Field Marshal Blucher.

French officials said they received no formal invitation to take part in the ceremonies but it was learned preliminary "unofficial soundings" were politely but firmly turned down.

In Asia—Rusk Warns:

'BIG RED PUSH BIG MISTAKE'

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk, claiming a further Soviet missile involvement in the Viet Nam war, said Wednesday it would be a great mistake if Moscow and Peking should think "that a larger war on their side would remove us from Southeast Asia."

At his first press conference in two months, Rusk said there may be a second surface-to-air missile site in the immediate area of Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital.

"We understand that in one of these sites there is present missile-associated equipment," Rusk said under question. "I wouldn't want to go into details."

WON'T STAY EMPTY

"But I would suppose that we could all assume that if they build (such) sites, they don't build them to let them remain empty."

U.S. officials said that the term missile-associated equipment refers to such things as launch platforms, gantries, derricks, launching pads and similar apparatus needed to put a missile into firing position. So far as is known at present, there are no Soviet missiles in place and ready for firing, officials said.

20-MILE RANGE

The type of Soviet-supplied missiles involved have a range of about 20 miles. They are not to be confused with the intermediate-range missiles which the Soviet Union installed in Cuba and brought on the confrontation with President John F. Kennedy in October, 1962.

Rusk spoke out in stronger terms than in the past on the seriousness of the Viet Nam situation. "I think it is very important that no one misunderstand the gravity of the situation," he said.

DETERMINED

While Rusk minimized the import of a statement by Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton, a Canadian native who said the Soviet Union and China were moving together into the Viet Nam situation, he declared:

"If those who are supporting North Viet Nam, or feel themselves associated with North Viet Nam, feel that they can drive us out of our commitments there in Southeast Asia—these commitments are serious, they are of long standing, and we are determined."

At another point, Rusk said there continue to be very important differences between Moscow and Peking

Anzac Aid On Way To Viet Nam

New Zealand will send combat troops to South Viet Nam, Prime Minister Keith Holyoake has announced.

He said an artillery battery will be sent to aid U.S. forces in the Southeast Asia country. A small group of New Zealand army engineers is already in South Viet Nam, as is a small medical unit.

Australia has sent 800 soldiers to the fighting zone. They sailed aboard the aircraft carrier Sydney under wartime blackout conditions.

Vote Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An overpowering coalition of Democratic and Republican U.S. Senators passed President Johnson's voting rights bill Wednesday, 77 to 19. Southern opposition was routed under a closure rule that choked off debate. The vote sending the precedent-setting measure to the House came after five weeks of Senate debate.

Vancouver Times Now Weekly

Lilies Spell the End Of Daily Publication

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP)—There were lilies in the newsroom Wednesday as the Vancouver Times announced it was temporarily leaving the daily field to become a weekly.

The wax flowers were carried in by two reporters, members of the 225-man staff that will be cut to 100 key men by the time the last daily edition rolls next Monday.

By the following Thursday the Times, which first published as a daily Sept. 5, 1964, will be into weekly operation.

President Val Warren, at a press conference, said the newspaper hopes to build its present 30,000 circulation to 150,000 and gradually return to the daily field.

The change to a weekly—circulation price 35 cents a month—was made necessary by the "fiasco of the lack of working capital."

Mr. Warren said recently directors had thought that $4,000,000 was enough to start the newspaper. But experience had shown that they had underestimated and that $6,000,000 would have been a more realistic figure.

At the press conference he said it had cost $800,000 to launch the newspaper and during its nine months of publication it had lost "more than $1,000,000."

Mr. Warren said the March operating loss was $80,000. Wednesday's announcement came almost two months after

They Revel in Heat

By M. V. CHESNUT

For some little time now we have been discussing those problem flower beds out around the front of the house—very much in the public eye—and what kinds of summer-flowering plants to buy for furnishing them.

If your house faces south or southwest, with a real hot, dry, sun-baked bed out front, you could do a lot worse than to take a tip from our fuddy-duddy Victorian ancestors and plant it up with a bold mass of the old-fashioned scarlet geraniums.

These plants are real heat-lovers and will revel in conditions that would scizzle the juices out of stocks or pantries.

Geraniums are rather expensive to buy—at least, if you need any great number of them to make a showing. Small plants will set you back around $2.50 per box of 12, or about $5.25 per dozen for larger plants in four-inch pots; the latter will probably be furnished with buds and all set to burst into bloom.

While the first cost may be high, you can get a lot of mileage out of geraniums, for if you are a smart gardener, you can keep your plants alive in the basement through the winter to use again. Geraniums are also extremely easy to propagate from slips, so you can always get more plants from your first batch.

I never use manure in the preparation of the beds for geraniums, for heavy feeding makes the growth almost as lush and mappy as a rhubarb leaf and you wind up with giant plants, all leaf and no flowers. Besides, mellow old rotted manure is too precious a commodity to waste on plants that don't appreciate it.

I am a bit chary about using chemical fertilizer on these plants too, for I lost a batch one year due, I suspect, to some ingredient or impurity in the fertilizer.

If the soil is very sandy or gravelly or if it is a heavy clay loam, I dig in peat moss, which hasn't much food value but is grand stuff for improving the texture of the soil, making clay less sticky and more easily worked and giving sandy ground a greater ability to retain moisture.

For fertilizer, bone meal is the stuff for these plants—bone meal and wood ashes. I use two cups of bone meal and four of wood ashes to the square yard in preparing the bed, scattering it evenly on the surface and raking it into the surface shallowly.

I break the soil down moderately with the rake after digging, but not too much, for geraniums do better in slightly lumpy than in powdery fine soil. Following the digging, fertilizing and raking, I tread the bed much more firmly than for any other flower—just as firmly as for Brussels sprouts.

Really firm soil produces a stocky, short-jointed plant with well-ripened stems and a good head of bloom from every joint.

After planting, the tip of each plant is nipped off. This shearing causes side shoots to arise from every leaf joint, each one growing vertically from the sloping main stem, and each one of these secondary shoots should bear a good head of flowers. In this way, you get more blooms per square yard and a much more lavish display than if the plants had been set in upright.

I have an idea that by this time next year our commercial greenhouse men will be offering us seed-grown plants of the new geranium Nittany Lion, developed by Penn State University and named after its famous mascot.

This is the first red geranium to come true from seed, making a free-flowering compact plant seldom more than 14 inches tall, and blooming in six months from sowing. Seeds are still very expensive $1 for a packet of 25 seeds.

ART BUCHWALD Writes a Cowboy Script

All Blackfeet Anti-Apache

Whenever I get tired writing about politics, I like to write a cowboy script. I've been working on one lately about Lyndon Baines, the famous mayor of Great Bird Falls.

In the opening scene, the tall, kindly mayor is addressing the people in front of the Great Society saloon.

"Now folks," he says, "Ah'm happy to announce that everyone is going to get more water, more schooling, and better medical care, and it is my intention to see that Great Bird Falls becomes the most wonderful town in the country and its citizens the happiest people in the world."

The townspeople cheer, but suddenly a cowboy rides into town, jumps off his horse and says breathlessly, "The Shawnees are fighting with the Blackfeet Indians, mayor."

"That's no concern of ours," the mayor says. "But the Blackfeet are being led by Apaches."

"Apaches?" says the mayor incredulously. "How do you know?"

"I have the names of 53 Apaches here in my pocket who are fighting on the side of the Blackfeet."

"Where did you get this list?" the mayor wants to know.

"It was given to me by the Shawnees."

The mayor is grim. "We have no choice but to send in the cavalry to protect the lives of the white women and children."

"But there are no white women and children in the area."

"We'll send some in with the cavalry," the mayor says.

The next scene shows the U.S. cavalry riding up the canyon into Indian territory. They arrive just as the Blackfeet are about to attack the Shawnees.

The cavalry takes up positions between the two tribes and the colonel announces he has come to protect the lives and property of the white man.

The Blackfeet, furious at the interference, start sending up smoke signals denouncing the U.S. cavalry and the mayor of Great Bird Falls.

The colonel demands that the Blackfeet surrender and give up their Apaches. The chief of the Blackfeet denies he has any Apaches in his tribe.

"We anti-Apache," he tells the colonel. "All Blackfeet want is freedom."

The colonel goes to see the chief of the Shawnees and asks him to give up, but the chief says the Shawnees are the only ones who can keep the territory from going Apache. He demands the right to clean out the Blackfeet once and for all.

The colonel sends back word to the mayor: "Can't tell the good Indians from the bad Indians. Please send instructions."

The mayor dispatches four deputies who meet with the chiefs and ask them to form a coalition tribe made up of Shawnees and Blackfeet.

But chief says, "Ugh."

In the meantime the Blackfeet and Shawnees start taking pot shots at the cavalry. So the cavalry starts firing back.

The mayor finally calls on the Organization of Indian Chiefs to help him out.

It was held at the Duke of Medinaceli's exquisite Casa de Pilatos, the setting for most of the Lawrence of Arabia interiors. Mingling with the movie stars were all of the available European royalty which comes and goes but the magical people of show business go on forever.

Jill St. John, in the flower market in the old part of Nice, drove such a hard bargain that she surprised the French stall holders, and her British companion. "I'd like to see anyone put one over on me in the flower department," said Jill. "I own a string of five flower shops in Mexico."

DR. STUART ROSENBERG on Behaviorism

Man More Than Reason

Some people confuse religion with superstition. They need clarification—for, in the truest sense, religion is the enemy of superstition.

Yet, one teacher correctly judged men when he said: "Civilized people lose their religion easily but rarely their superstitions."

Often this is so very true. At moments of crisis in our lives, some of us lose the power of reason, even of common sense, and begin to latch on to moods which produce irrational behavior.

Superstition creeps into our lives at crucial moments, moments like birth, marriage, sickness and death. Yet, ask the average man if he thinks of himself as being superstitious, and his answer very likely will be like that woman in the story. She was asked to tell of her favorite superstition, and she said, as she touched wood: "Thank God, I haven't got any."

Superstition is irrational behavior, dressed up in a way as to make it seem rational. The power which man has—the divine gift to use his mind, to exercise his insight, he fritters away by making himself powerless when he could be more powerful.

An easy way for a man to blame his own lack of success that day is to suggest an irrational reason—he saw empty bottles in the street on the way to work; that is why he did not have luck.

His own fears and doubts about the success of that day, however, are the essential problem—the bottles, a symbol of his desire to disguise his fear.

A word of clarification is in order about the difference between the rational, the irrational and the non-rational activities of man. Psychologists would agree with the theologian, that not all of man's behavior is susceptible to reasonable argument.

If this were true, there would be no such thing as love, feelings of mercy and compassion. Love, mercy, even justice are not rational activities of men—but surely they are not irrational habits.

They belong to the sphere of non-rational attitudes and deeds. For, man is more than reason; he is also a feeling as well as a thinking creature. Without the elements of emotion and feeling in our behavior, we could not survive by the use of reason alone.

The prose of life, in other words, must be blended with its poetry. In this sense, Pascal was profoundly right when he said: "The heart hath its reasons, which Reason does not know."

But beware of the man who confuses the non-rational or poetical aspects of human life with irrational behavior. Irrational behavior is not only the enemy of reason, it also perverts emotion. Anyone who can love another to death is obviously acting rationally.

Those who can pervert the emotions in such a way as to destroy reality, and create disharmony, do not provide us with a good example of the way in which the feeling or the emotional side of life should be approached.

Thus it is that high religion is the enemy of irrationality, while it is perfectly willing to accept the non-rational aspects of life as normal and healthy. The function of religion is to make man aware of his own powers and to point from this awareness to that behavior which is good, beautiful and true.

To believe in God, therefore, cannot mean that we believe in the powerlessness of man. To believe in God, must mean that we have an awareness of the laws of nature, as well as the laws of morality.

To believe in God is to destroy the illusion which is a vestige of the ancient idolatrous world, that the world is populated by spirits, demons and goblins who act capriciously on their own and control the universe in a way not susceptible to law and order.

To believe in God is to reach the height of faith in man—that man is capable of increasing his reasoning powers to understand more.

We may not be able to explain fully why we love those whom we do—always a mystery enshrouds love and its final and ultimate significance eludes us. But this does not suggest that because we do not understand completely, we must not love. The existence of a mystery in the universe is what makes us men and not gods. But a divine gift is given to man to use his reason as far as it will go. It is this which can make us men and not animals.

Red Computer All Heart

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet doctors have used a computer to diagnose heart disease with 92 per cent accuracy, Tass news agency says. Tass said 10,000 different heart disease symptoms were fed to the computer. Then symptoms in individual cases were fed in, and a diagnosis came out quickly.

Victoria Golf Club Takes Series Lead

Victoria	11
Uplands	10½

McColl and Trapp won the four-ball, 6 and 5, but the 30 lead they had built up for their side evaporated when Bob Hunt and Eric Hibbsom continued to be perfect by taking three points from Ralph Flanagan and Ron Scott-Moncrieff.

That left it up to the third pairings, and it looked bad for Uplands until Frank Scroggs saved the day with a rally which gave him a 1-up win over George Eigelow.

One down with three holes left, Scroggs entered the match with a par on the 16th as Eigelow three-putted, went ahead with a birdie on the 17th and held his lead as both finished with routine pars.

Bill Davidson defeated Laurie Lee 2 and 1.
George Murphy defeated Court 2 par. Davidson and Murphy were tied for 10th place.

Al Blacklock lost to George Andrews 1 and 1.
The Carlow lost to Roger Ross, 1 and 1.
George Jones lost to Ricki Kent, 1 and 1.

Former Fire Chief New Commissioner

LAKE COWICHAN—Retired fire chief Boyd Rudolph All was elected by acclamation as the new commissioner on the village council Wednesday at noon.

Returning officer W. A. Chappell said no other nominations were received.

Mr. All succeeds G. K. Crawford, who resigned recently as he was leaving the district.

The new commissioner will be sworn in at the next council meeting June 8, and will hold the position until December 31.

To Help Chamber

Cowichan Council Will Consider Increased Grant

NORTH COWICHAN—A bid for a $50 grant by the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce will be considered by council's finance committee. Chamber delegates were told Wednesday.

Chamber president David Pollock and past president Cliff Pascoe appeared before council asking that the annual grant from the municipality be increased to $50 from $100.

Answering questions on how the Chamber benefits the municipality the delegates referred Reeve Donald Morton to the busy tourist information centre at Duncan and to recent Chamber action which prompted the department of highways to add a walkway at a renovated bridge at Trunk Road.

Reeve Morton told the delegation he wished the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber would exert pressure on the city of Duncan for a trading area which had been proposed by North Cowichan for some time.

Councillor Gerry Smith said he feared an increased grant to the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber would encourage the Chemainus Chamber of Commerce to seek a similar increase in its grant next year. Coun. Smith is a member of the Chemainus Chamber.

Coun. Elaine Dobbyn said she felt the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber is carrying out an "important service to the community."

VOTING DAY

Council set June 26 as voting day in connection with supplying water to a portion of the municipality near Somenos Lake which will cost $135,000 and will serve about 134 water users.

Council also decided to drop the $100 bond for non-resident businesses; will send another $200 as a grant to the Cowichan exhibition board; learned that Coun. George Whitaker heads the Tri-University fund drive in this area; referred to the finance committee requests from Chemainus and Duncan RCMP for one additional policeman each by April next year and decided to meet the city of Duncan as soon as possible to settle the proposal for a swimming pool toward which the Duncan Rotary Club will donate the original $25,000.

Two Parades

Annual inspection of the Victoria Branch of St. John Ambulance will be held at two parades Thursday evening at 841 Pandora.

Cadets will be inspected at 8:30 p.m. and the senior divisions at 8 p.m. with first aid and home nursing demonstrations following.

COURTENAY—A request for improved psychiatric services in this area has been sent to the attorney-general's department by the family and children's court committee.

At present the service consists of a one-day visit once a month by Dr. S. E. Jensen, director of the Island Mental Health Centre.

HOME CLOSED

Dr. J. D. Holden, co-founder and lifetime director of the John Howard Society of B.C. who acts as the committee's visiting consultant, said a remand home which had operated successfully for some time had been closed due to lack of psychiatric consultants.

In its letter the committee said better psychiatric services were needed for:

- Assessment of children before placement in private or group-living homes;
- Consultation with parents of a group-living home;
- Children under the care of authorities.

Copies of the letter were sent to Health Minister Martin and Coun. MLA Dan Campbell.

In other business the committee decided to continue pressing for the early establishment of a forensic clinic for the treatment and diagnostic assessment of sex deviates.

Universities Fund Looks for Pledges

COURTENAY—The Three Universities Capital Fund campaign under the chairmanship of Steve Wharmam gets under way this week.

The target, to raise $35,000 over five years, will be aimed primarily at business, executive and professional groups who will be asked for pledges to cover the five-year period.

The three universities, UBC, Simon Fraser University and the University of Victoria will undergo in the next five years $66,000,000 worth of expansion. Of this $60,000,000 will be contributed by the government, the other $28,000,000 will be the responsibility of the Three Universities Capital Fund campaign.

A team of canvassers under the direction of Harold Woodland, Stan Heel and Harry Cornwell will tour the area within the next two weeks for pledges and contributions.

"We are now plugging for a regional college in the Comox Valley and perhaps a good way to show them that we are interested in education is to blast the Three Universities Capital Fund over the top," a spokesman said.

Triple Play Rescue

DUNCAN—Three ham radio operators and a B.C. Airlines pilot teamed up Sunday morning to fly a stricken baby from isolated Friendly Cove to Esplananza Red Cross Hospital, both on Vancouver Island's West Coast.

Sunday morning Duncan ham operator Ernie Hawksworth was talking over his set with Al Ackerman at West Bridge in the British Columbia interior.

A third operator, Bob Marchand, a teacher at Friendly Cove's mission school, tried to reach Mr. Hawksworth but couldn't "read" him.

However, the West Bridge operator, "copied" the message from Friendly Cove and relayed it to Mr. Hawksworth who in turn phoned the Canadian Pacific Airlines office in Victoria.

A B.C. Airlines official in Vancouver reached an aircraft on its way to Tahiti, also on the west coast.

Mr. Hawksworth was connected directly with the pilot and 10 minutes after the first clear word was received in the interior and relayed to Duncan, the plane landed at Friendly Cove and picked up the baby.

Courtenay Program

COURTENAY—A program to help members of the unemployed increase their education was endorsed here Tuesday by school trustees of District 71.

The action was taken after the board by adult education director Harry Harris, who had worked on the scheme with the National Employment Service.

FULL TIME

Proposed is a full-time class, five hours a day, five days a week, to help pupils attain the equivalent of a Grade 10 education. The classes, to be held from 4:30 p.m. to 10 p.m., would enable them to further their education and upgrade the standard of work by attending a vocational school.

Subject to be included in the plan are mathematics, science and English, taught from a practical point of view. It was also the Project '65 Peace march.

"We have met very little hostility from anyone around the base and anyone we might meet we are prepared to face and deal with in a non-violent way."

Miss Bassett described the meeting with Flt. Lt. Clack as friendly.

"He asked us if we would try to go over the fence to enter the base. We said we probably wouldn't but if refused entry at the main barrier we would sit down and block passage to the base. If traffic is diverted, we can block one or maybe two more entrances," she said.

Mr. Dilday said that at the "end of the meeting Clack told us he couldn't wish us good luck, but he did wish us well in our endeavours and hoped there would be no unpleasant incidents."

Mr. Light added that it looked as if "we may actually obstruct the normal function of the base for 24 hours. We hope that hundreds of people from all over Vancouver Island and Lower Mainland will join in the action June 2."

After the report of the meeting was released Wednesday, officials of the RCAF station were phoned for confirmation. Group Capt. Ireland maintained his "no comment" stance, while Flt. Lt. Clack said: "While I wished them well, I meant personally and not necessarily in their project."

At Nanaimo, 11 bedraggled marchers arrived to set up headquarters at the old Harwood fire hall. They plan to stage a sit-in demonstration at the provincial government fall-out bunker this morning.

Wanted: Jobs For Students

DUNCAN—R. S. Robinson, manager of the local National Employment Service office, is seeking the co-operation from all employers in the Cowichan Valley in finding work for students graduating from secondary schools next month.

"Many of these youngsters have conscientiously worked at school and have completed their Grade 12 with good class standing," said Mr. Robinson.

KEEN ALERT

"They are excellent employment potential—keen, alert, ready to face the challenge of the working world," Mr. Robinson said.

He pointed out that these students' plans are such that they do not seek either further scholastic or special training at this time.

READY FOR JOBS

They are ready now for permanent employment and they need work experience and on-the-job training.

"We urge employers to telephone the Duncan local office at 748-4111 to list any suitable job vacancies, and to arrange for interviews with these young people all of whom are registered with us. Help us now to help our young citizens."

Historic Train Here in 1967

A working committee will be set up by city council to make plans for the visit of the Confederation Train to Victoria in January, 1967.

LAKE COWICHAN—A sewer system is expensive but being sick is expensive too, district health inspector Douglas Roe told the Lake Cowichan and District Chamber of Commerce meeting in the Riverside Inn Tuesday night.

Mr. Roe said that Youbou is a lucky community because there was a great deal of gravel available for filtering sewage.

But, he said, Lake Cowichan village is situated on clay and there is a large volume of water moving through the top two feet of surface soil.

NO SOLUTION

He said he could think of at least a dozen places in the village where there was no solution to the sewage problem. The accumulated water travelled into ditches and from there into creeks, Cowichan Lake and finally Cowichan River.

Mr. Roe said there had been more cases of infectious hepatitis in the local health unit area than in Edmonton and Calgary put together.

GOOD WATER

Lake Cowichan, he said, has a good, safe water supply, which includes the use of a chlorinating system. However, he said, chlorinating water doesn't help against hepatitis although it does safeguard against other diseases.

He said he is attempting to obtain an engineer to study the feasibility of collective sewers in the village. He said the project would include the setting aside of land for sewage by the village council.

ADVANTAGES

"There is no use collecting sewage if there is nowhere to put it," Mr. Roe said.

As advantages of installing a sewer system he listed:

- The disease rate drops, even those diseases not connected with sewage problems.
- The area gains the benefits of NHA financing, which will keep people in the community who move out because they cannot afford to build a house unless it is financed;
- The village or city grows within two or three years of sewer installation and the community begins to expand.

ONLY WAY OUT

Mr. Roe said a sewage system in Lake Cowichan wouldn't be the cheap, easy way out but it would be "the only way out for the community."

In other business the Chamber has written Highways Minister Gagliardi asking for a speedup of work on reconstruction of the Cowichan Lake Road; asked the village council to provide more parking facilities and blacktop the area in the front of the post office; asked B.C. Forest Products to clear the small trees and brush on company land at the post office in conjunction with the Chamber's clean-up campaign; and endorsed the program of the Children's International Summer Village to be held July 15 to August 15 at Brentwood College, Mill Bay.

Second Man Gets Five Years

PORT ALBERNI—Samuel Snow, second man arrested for burglaries here and at Nanaimo, was sentenced to five years in prison for breaking, entering and theft at Alberni Engineering Ltd.

He also was sentenced to five years for breaking into B.C. Packers Ltd., two years for theft of a truck and one year for possession of an offensive weapon. All terms are concurrent.

In Alberni Snow appeared before Magistrate W. E. MacLeod and was sentenced to four years for breaking, entering and theft from Ostrom Machine Shop and store at Nanaimo.

Parking Control Sought

NANAIMO—City council will study a request from the Independent Retailers Association for a parking commission to manage the newly completed Gordon Street development.

Aldermen ratified a recommendation of the parking and traffic control committee eliminating parking on the north side of Bastion Street from Commercial Street to Slammer Street and on part of the east side of Slammer Street.

A motion was passed authorizing use of the Corps of Commissioners for enforcement of parking meter regulations.

CONCESSION

Up to now, Special Const. Lloyd Bertram has patrolled the city's parking meters with the assistance of RCMP. Police officers are now relieved of this task.

Henry J. Warwick was given council permission to operate the concession at Westwood Lake Park.

Nanaimo and District Museum Society was given permission to remove museum articles now in storage at city hall to begin furnishing an area it has taken over in the Credit Union Building.

Port Youth Launches Long Bicycle Jaunt

PORT ALBERNI—Nineteen-year-old Cliff Nerey will pedal out of Port Alberni at 3 a.m. Friday on the start of his cross-Canada and return trip by bicycle.

The young spare-board longshoreman will take with him the good wishes of Port Alberni council and letters of greetings to mayors of cities all across the Dominion.

Tuesday night, city council voted a $50 grant toward the estimated $600 expenses needed for his trip.

He said he intends to "eat off the land" to keep his expenses down. He expects to reach Newfoundland 45 days after he leaves Vancouver.

By EDWIN ROTH
Special to the Colonist

DUESSELDORF—In his black evening suit with tails, stiff white shirt and white tie, Britain's white-haired Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart looked very tired.

He walked slowly behind Queen Elizabeth through almost 3,000 evening-dressed or uniformed men and women glittering with jewels and decorations at the magnificent baroque Brühl castle near West Germany's capital, Bonn. But despite his tiredness, his smile seemed to show satisfaction.

"It's very good that this royal state visit is now taking place," he remarked to me while near us the Queen's superb diamonds sparkled in the candlelight. "I say this not only as British foreign secretary, but also as a member of the Labor party. We want the best possible relations with West Germany. This royal state visit helps a lot to get them."

Quite Different

Beside Stewart stood West Germany's rotund Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, happily spreading aromatic smoke from his big cigar. With a national election due in September, Queen Elizabeth II of England is worth many votes to him.

"Herr Bundeskanzler," I asked him, "how would you compare this state visit of Queen Elizabeth with the state visits of President de Gaulle in 1962, and President Kennedy in 1963?"

"A queen is something quite different from a president," lectured Professor Erhard.

"Queen Elizabeth cannot be as jovial as President de Gaulle and President Kennedy were here in Germany. She cannot walk into crowds and shake hands like de Gaulle and Kennedy."

Erhard paused, and added diplomatically: "But I think the German people's emotional participation in this visit is greater."

Dearly Love Queen

"Why?"

"Because the Germans are good republicans. And because they are good republicans, they dearly love a queen."

During that reception at Brühl castle, Michael Stewart knew (but did not tell) exactly how the Labor government was using the Queen's visit in the present fierce diplomatic and "public relations" battle against General de Gaulle. Erhard probably knew it too, because public speeches by visitors on formal state visits are usually known by the host government before they are made.

It was known, of course, that Elizabeth would publicly support the German dream of Germany's reunification by free elections. She exploded her Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson's carefully prepared bombshell against French-German friendship while standing in a bright pink dress beside the Rhine at Koblenz—a few moments before she and her husband Prince Philip boarded the white steamboat Lorelei for a Rhine cruise.

Alliance Recalled

In her speech thanking the prime minister of Rheinland-Palatinate for his official welcome, the Queen dramatically recalled the British-German alliance against France which defeated Napoleon—and German Field Marshal Blücher's crossing of the Rhine on his way to the Battle of Waterloo, where he and his German soldiers "brought the British troops invaluable support at a turning point of history 150 years ago."

Under the British constitution, Queen Elizabeth can say publicly only what her Prime Minister wants her to say.

This historical note, which was not essential and which nobody would have missed, was not put into her speech carefully. Prime Minister Harold Wilson certainly knew that in West Germany's present political situation—most of which revolves passionately around Charles de Gaulle—the Queen's remark would make a tremendous impact.

Instant Reaction

It did—in both West Germany and France. General de Gaulle and the entire French nation, who venerate Napoleon as their greatest national hero, are extremely touchy about French defeats. But most West Germans are furious about de Gaulle's recent political attitudes, and some West German newspapers reflected this feeling by printing the Queen's words about the British-German alliance against France under big headlines.

In France, the Queen's speech was violently attacked

Big Prizes to City Pair

Victoria students won two major scholarship awards at the University of Victoria, it was announced Wednesday night. As head of the graduating class in the Faculty of Arts and Science, Richard Arthur Gough was awarded the Governor-General's medal. Anne E. Kemp was awarded the Dr.

Miss Kemp earned 84 per cent. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kemp, 5000 Granville. See Page 38 for complete graduate list.

Arrival of Brazilians Releases U.S. Marines

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters)—Withdrawal of men since American forces landed here a month ago. A U.S. military spokesman Wednesday in the first

This was roughly equal to the number of Latin American troops who have arrived here to form part of an inter-American force.

McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's adviser on national security affairs, left here earlier in the day to report to the White House.

CALLS ON CAAMANO

One of his last acts was to hold a four-hour interview with Col. Francisco Caamaño Domo, president of the rebel government.

It was his first personal meeting with Caamaño since arriving here more than a week ago.

According to informed sources, he had previously met Brig. Gen. Antonio Imbert, head of the "reconstruction" junta.

MORE LEAVING

The withdrawal of 1,100 more U.S. troops is expected to follow Wednesday's withdrawal of 600. The move would be timed to coincide with the arrival of 1,250 Brazilian troops.

In Washington, U.S. Secretary of State Rusk said the Dominican crisis should prompt the Organization of American States to establish machinery which would let it deal quickly with "fast-moving events."

STANDBY FORCE

The 20-nation hemispheric organization, he said, should take up again the question of forming some standby force on a continuing basis that would be on prompt call in the event of a crisis.

It also should organize political machinery that would let it make quick decisions, he said.

RED PUSH 'MISTAKE'

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk, claiming a further Soviet missile involvement in the Viet Nam war, said Wednesday it would be a great mistake if Moscow and Peking should think "that a larger war on their side would remove us from Southeast Asia."

At his first press conference in two months, Rusk said there may be a second surface-to-air missile site in the immediate area of Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital.

"We understand that in one of these sites there is present missile-associated equipment," Rusk said under question. "I wouldn't want to go into details."

WON'T STAY EMPTY

U.S. officials said that the term missile-associated equipment refers to such things as launch platforms, gantries, derricks, launching pads and similar apparatus needed to put a missile into firing position. So far as is known at present, there are no Soviet missiles in place and ready for firing, officials said.

20-MILE RANGE

The type of Soviet-supplied missiles involved have a range of about 20 miles. They are not to be confused with the intermediate-range missiles which the Soviet Union installed in Cuba and brought on the confrontation with President John F. Kennedy in October, 1962.

Rusk spoke in stronger terms than in the past on the seriousness of the Viet Nam situation. "I think it is very important that no one misunderstand the gravity of the situation," he said.

DETERMINED

While Rusk minimized the import of a statement by Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton, a Canadian native who said the Soviet Union and China were moving together into the Viet Nam situation, he declared:

"If those who are supporting North Viet Nam, or feel themselves associated with North Viet Nam, feel that they can drive us out of our commitments there in Southeast Asia—these commitments are serious, they are of long standing, and we are determined."

At another point, Rusk said there continue to be very important differences between Moscow and Peking.

Anzac Aid On Way To Viet Nam

(From Reuters, UPI)

New Zealand will send combat troops to South Viet Nam, Prime Minister Keith Holyoake has announced.

He said an artillery battery will be sent to aid U.S. forces in the Southeast Asia country. A small group of New Zealand army engineers is already in South Viet Nam, as is a small medical unit.

Australia has sent 800 soldiers to the fighting zone. They sailed aboard the aircraft carrier Sydney under wartime blackout conditions.

Vote Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An overpowering coalition of Democratic and Republican U.S. Senators voted President Johnson's pending rights bill Wednesday, 77 to 19. Southern opposition was routed under a closure rule that choked off debate. The vote sending the precedent-setting measure to the House came after five weeks of Senate debate.

Mariner Waiting For Mars

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mariner 4, scheduled to visit the environs of Mars July 14, already has passed the red planet.

But, the U.S. space agency says, this is nothing to worry about.

The spacecraft is already losing speed in its curving orbit around the sun, and Mars will catch up in time for the close-approach date.

Vancouver Times Now Weekly

Lilies Spell the End Of Daily Publication

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP)—There were lilies in the newsmen's room Wednesday as the Vancouver Times announced it was temporarily leaving the daily field to become a weekly.

The wax flowers were carried in by two reporters, members of the 25-man staff that will be cut to 100 by men by the time the last daily edition rolls next Monday.

By the following Thursday the Times, which first published as a daily Sept. 5, 1964, will be into weekly operation.

President Val Warren, at a press conference, said the newspaper hopes to build its present 50,000 circulation to 130,000 and gradually return to the daily field.

The change to a weekly—circulation price 35 cents a month—was made necessary by the "fungus of the lack of working capital."

Mr. Warren said recently directors had thought that $4,000,000 was enough to start the newspaper. But experience had shown that they had underestimated and that $6,000,000 would have been a more realistic figure.

At the press conference he said it had cost $800,000 to launch the newspaper and during its nine months of publication it had lost "more than $1,000,000."

Mr. Warren said the March operating loss was $80,000. Wednesday's announcement came almost two months after

Apprentice's Dream Comes True

DUISBURG, Germany (UPI)—The large black automobile bearing the Queen rolled to a halt before a nervous group of executives, policemen and workers at the Mannesman Steel Works Tuesday.

Apprentices with their faces scrubbed and hair slicked down above grimy overalls, beamed at Queen Elizabeth II. She beamed back through the automobile window.

No one moved. It had not been arranged for someone to open the car door. A company policeman started forward, faltered, and fell back.

There was an excruciating moment. Then Juergen Loosen, a 20-year-old apprentice, stepped forward, opened the door and helped the Queen out.

"Your Majesty," he said, "we have made a sundial of steel for you to show what we have learned here."

The apprentices and the girls from the factory offices started creeping closer, and the nearest ranks were soon within arm's reach, enclosing the Queen in a tight circle.

Loosen introduced two fellow apprentices, Clive Anthony Lamey, an Englishman, and James Arthur Ross of Aroostook Junction, New Brunswick.

Ross, a tall, slender lad of 20 years, told the Queen that Tuesday was his last day in the plant. He was to leave for home Wednesday after a year in Germany.

A radio reporter asked Ross what he thought of the Queen. "She was different than I expected," he said. "She was—you know, so natural."

The older workers crowded around Loosen.

"Juergen," cried one, slapping him on the shoulder, "you acted just as if you received a queen every day. You were not at all nervous."

"Maybe not," Loosen replied, "but I have dreamed about this every night for a week."

"You will have an even better dream tonight," someone yelled.

"No," said Juergen, "the dream is over."
